Hitt Talks Against Belligerency Resolution.

HE SPOKE FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Major McKinley a Friend of the Rebels, but Thinks Recognition Would Do Them Harm — Speaker Reed Again Blocks the Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The question of granting belligerent rights to the Cuban insurgents has again been argued in the house, but, as on the day before, the minority hurled itself against a stone wall. On the only vote taken, a motion designated to overrule the decision of the speaker and direct the committee on foreign affairs to report without further delay the Cuban resolution passed by the senate at the last session, the Republicans stood solid and voted to sustain the chair.

The galleries, as on the day before, were banked to the doors, and there was considerable excitement throughout the early part of the session when the members of the minority were successively presenting all sorts of amendments bearing on the Cuban question for the purpose of embarrassing the majority. During the general debate Chairman Hitt of the foreign affairs committee made an impressive speech of less than an hour, explaining at length the situation which made action by congress inadvisable. He spoke with impassioned words of the president's sympathy with the struggle for Cuban independence and the achievements of the present administration.

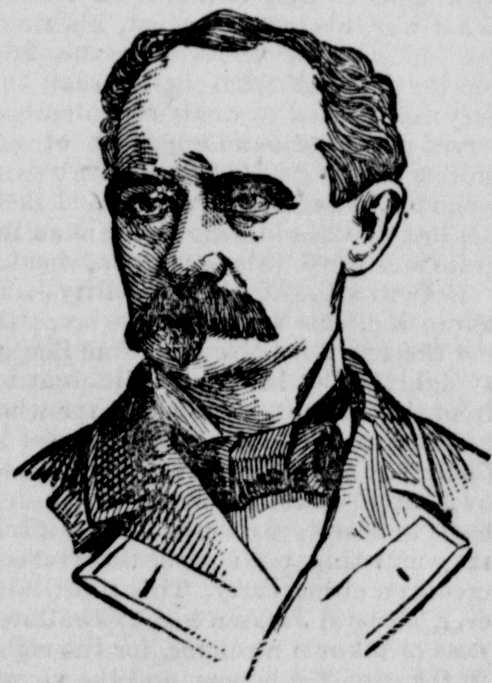

The release of American prisoners in Cuba, the recall of Weyler, the abandonment of the policy of concentration and the autonomy scheme he attributed to the firm attitude of the president, and contrasted these results with the action of the last administration.

The president had pointed out, Mr. Hitt said, that the recognition of belligerence would, in fact, weigh most heavily on the Cubans, and this fact disclosed the spirit animating the executive. With the declaration of belligerency the Spanish cruisers were free beyond the three-mile limit of Cuba to harass on the high seas those ships carrying supplies to Cuba.

The Cubans themselves recognized that belligerency meant the cutting off of their supplies from this country, but they hoped, and had expressed themselves to Mr. Hitt, that it would bring a stray shot from a Spanish cruiser on the high seas directed against an American ship, which would inflame the American people and sweep the United States into a war with Spain.

Mr. Hitt referred to the critical condition in Havana and the readiness of our warships for emergencies. What the next step would be he could not foretell.

He asserted that the president must assume the responsibility of any action which might eventuate in war and appealed to both sides of the chamber to patriotically support the executive if a crisis should come.

Mr. Dinsmore (Ark.), the leading member of the committee on foreign affairs, replied to him, and Messrs. Adams (Rep., Pa.), chairman of the Cuban sub-committee of the same committee, Berry (Dem., Ky.) and Wheeler (Dem., Ky.) also addressed the house during the general debate. The debate will close today at 4 o'clock under the arrangement made, when a final test will be made on a motion, of which Mr. Williams (Dem., Miss.) gave notice, to recommit the bill with instructions to report back the Cuban resolution as a rider.

TELLER SILVER RESOLUTION.

Vest Gave Notice He Would Move Its Consideration Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Mr. Vest gave notice in the senate that he would move today to take up for consideration the Teller resolution reported by the finance committee providing that bonds of the United States may be paid in standard silver dollars.

Mr. Vest's notice seems to indicate an intention on the part of some senators to displace, temporarily, the Hawaiian annexation treaty, as it is evident, as Mr. White (Cal.) said that the consideration of the resolution would "precipitate some slight discussion."

Bryan and Others Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The senate confirmed these nominations: Charles Page Bryan to be minister to Brazil; E. H. Conger of Iowa to be minister to China. To be consuls: G. C. E. Weber of Ohio at Neuremberg, W. W. Touvelle of Ohio at Belfast, S. M. Taylor of Ohio at Glasgow, B. F. Stone of Ohio at Huddersfield, England, Rufus Fleming of Ohio at Edinburgh.

For Admission of Territories.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The house committee on territories, after concluding the hearing of arguments, fixed on the next Wednesday meeting for the vote on the statehood bills of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona.

AGAINST GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

A Railroad President's Letter to a Populist Editor in Kansas.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—President Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe has written a letter to the editor of a Kansas Populist paper replying to a communication published in that paper, citing the number of people killed by the railroads of the United States as a reason why these railroads should be put under government control. Mr. Ripley points out that the railways carry the whole population of the state of Kansas two and a half times over before one passenger is killed; that last year the trains on the railways in Kansas ran over 800,000 miles, yet only one employee's life was sacrificed for every 431,000 miles.

Of others killed in the United States in 1896, the reports show that 3,811 were trespassers, that is to say, out of every 22 persons killed, 19 were killed because they were breaking the law and were in places where the railway people had no reason to expect to find them.

The owners of railways are entirely indifferent to government ownership, and he points out that the strongest plea made in behalf of the government ownership is that of T. B. Blackstone, president of the Chicago and Alton road, who urged it as a measure of justice to the railway investors. There is no holder of railway securities, he says, who does not believe that those securities would be advanced in value if there was any prospect of the government buying them.

He says the best managed railways of the world are the English. They are all owned and operated by private companies. Next to them in good management, he states, are the private owned lines of Holland and France, while the government-owned lines in France are very bad.

OUTLAW GANG BROKEN UP.

American and Mexican Officers Killed Some of Black Jack's Men.

TUCSON, A. T., Jan. 20.—It is reported that Black Jack's gang of outlaws was surrounded in the mountains near the boundary line by several posses, including the posse sent out by the Mexican government, and a fight occurred, in which one of the robbers was killed and four captured.

Two attempted to escape after being caught and were shot in flight. The other two were in the hands of the Mexican officers, and it is claimed they met death in like manner. The remainder of the freebooters went in a southerly direction, and are supposedly in the interior of Mexico in the Sierra Madre mountains.

THE WELCOME TO DOLE.

Government Representatives to Leave Washington For Chicago Soon.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Major Heistand, the army representative, and Lieutenant Commander Phelps, who has definitely accepted the assignment to represent the navy in receiving President Dole of Hawaii, have reported to Mr. Crider and they will soon leave for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the reception and entertainment of President Dole of Hawaii, who is expected to arrive in Chicago Saturday morning on the Chicago and Northwestern overland limited train.

MRS NACK PENITENT.

Thinks She Can Atone For Murder by Being Good.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Augusta Nack, the accomplice of Martin Thorn in the murder of William Guldensuppe last June, has been taken to Auburn prison to serve a sentence of 15 years' imprisonment for the crime.

Before she boarded the train the murderer said to several persons with her: "I am glad that I shall be punished for the crime I committed. I shall atone for my past misdeeds by being a model prisoner and giving everyone as little trouble as I possibly can."

Captain Murphy Not Guilty.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 20.—Captain Murphy, who was on trial in the United States district court, charged with filibustering in connection with the steamer Laurada, has been declared not guilty.

OPERATORS FIGHTING.

Delaying Work of Coal Conference at Chicago.

STATE DIFFERENTIAL THE CAUSE.

The Old Trouble Between Ohio and Pennsylvania Operators Crops Out Again—A Uniform Working Day of Nine Hours Will Be Recommended.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Two brief sessions were held by the interstate bituminous coal operators and miners yesterday and adjournment was taken until today, pending the scale committee's report.

From a public point of view everything in and about the convention appears calm, but in the secrecy of the scale committee chamber the old war between operators of the Ohio and Pennsylvania fields was fiercely raging.

Early in the session of the committee the question of hours of labor was thoroughly gone over. Representatives of the workmen favored an eight-hour day, but their principal contention was for a uniform day in place of the varying hours now established in the different states. The operators were willing to meet them half way, and it is understood a uniform working day of nine hours will be recommended to the convention.

The knotty problem of state differentials was then taken up. This brought Ohio and Pennsylvania operators together with a crash. In order to allow them full swing the regular committee took a recess until evening. The Ohio and Pennsylvania operators then went into session by themselves. The issue between these two states is of years' standing. Ohio operators have hitherto succeeded in securing a rate of 5 to 10 cents per ton below the Pennsylvania scale, while it is claimed by the Pennsylvania people that Ohio operators obtain 25 to 30 cents more per ton for their output. The fight to remove this difference on one side and to retain on the other is therefore a bitter one.

It is probable that the scale committee will be unable to agree on all matters before them, and will make their troubles known to the full convention, asking for further instruction.

The Pennsylvania and Ohio members of the scale committee did not reach an agreement last night, but it is probable that today they will agree on a differential of 4 cents. Pennsylvania wants 9 cents and the Ohio men are willing to grant 4.

GARY, SHAW OR MALSTER.

Judge McComas' Chance to Succeed Gorman Grows Smaller.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 20.—The senate and house have met in joint session and, after casting one ballot for United States senator to succeed Arthur P. Gorman, adjourned.

The vote cast for Judge McComas shows an increase of two over that received by him the day before. One of these came from Senator Dobler of Baltimore city, who left the Shaw ranks, and the other from Delegate Dryden of Somerset, who was absent on the first day of the balloting. Major Shaw's loss, through the desertion of Senator Dobler, was made up by the accession of Delegate Robinson of Baltimore city, who had voted for General Shryock. Senator Gorman gained a vote in the person of Senator Applegarth, who had voted for Judge Henry Page. The outcome of the day's balloting was a distinct disappointment to the followers of Judge McComas, they having confidently expected a gain of at least eight more votes than they got. Their failure is now thought to indicate the possible reappearance of Postmaster General Gary as a candidate, as these votes are looked upon as his whenever he wants them.

Indications of an attempt at coalition between the "faithful 11" and the Democratic members for the purpose of electing a Baltimore city man are growing stronger every hour. Such a combination would probably mean Shaw or Malster.

The ballot taken gave McComas, 36; Shaw, 11; Shryock, 2; Milliken, 2; Barber, 6; Gorman, 46; Findlay, 6; Parran, 6; Lowendes, 1. Total, 113; necessary to a choice, 57; absent, 4.

GOVERNMENT ARMOR PLANT.

Secretary Long Tells a Committee He Expects Several Bids.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Secretary Long, accompanied by Chief Constructor Hichborn, Chief O'Neill of the bureau of ordnance and Judge Advocate General Leasley, has appeared before the senate committee on naval affairs. The secretary said, in response to questions, that the navy department had prepared full plans and specifications calling for an armor plant under the last naval appropriation bill, and that estimates on the cost of land, tools and machinery necessary to equip the plant had been made. The bids were to be opened on the 20th inst., and he thought several bids would be made.

Secretary Long said also that in view of the delay in securing a government plant he believed that he could make a contract for the supply of armor plate for the Illinois, Alabama and Wisconsin, now under course of construction, which would be ready whenever the ships were ready to receive it at the rate of $400 per ton. The secretary recommended that an arrangement to this effect be made. From the secretary's statement, corroborated by statements by Commodore Hichborn and Captain O'Neill, it appears that the cost of a government plant, properly equipped, would be from $3,500,000 to $4,500,000.

A DEFENDER OF DOLE.

Senator Morgan Answered Attacks. Cleveland an Annexationist.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator Morgan continued his speech in advocacy of the Hawaiian annexation treaty in the executive session of the senate and announced at the conclusion that he would require one more day in which to complete his presentation of the subject.

He repeated his assertion that President Cleveland was favorable to the acquisition of the islands and again expressed the opinion that it was his intention to have restored Queen Liliuokalani and to have negotiated with her a treaty of annexation.

Mr. Morgan took up the criticism upon the present government of Hawaii, defending it in strong terms and eulogizing Mr. Dole as one of the most competent rulers of the time. He said that the people naturally sought a close alliance with the United States because they had always had the friendship and support of the people of this country. Speaking of the resources of the islands, Mr. Morgan said they were manifold and that the time would come when they would produce enough coffee to supply the demands of the people of the United States, while, he said, the sugar production had already reached its limit. He concluded that the resources of the country were such as to insure a prosperous future.

POSTAL SERVICE DEFICITS.

They Bring About a Lively Debate in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate by the introduction of a resolution by Mr. Hoar (Mass.) providing for an inquiry by the committee on postoffices and postroads concerning the recent order of the postmaster general reducing the force of letter carriers in several cities of the country. Mr. Hoar declared that the order had had the effect of a dynamite bomb in creating consternation among business men throughout the country, while apparently all that was needed by the postoffice department was an appropriation of $150,000 fully to maintain the efficiency of the carrier service.

The debate took a wide range, Mr. Wolcott, chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads, insisting that many New England people represented by the senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Hoar) were responsible for the deficiency in the funds of the postoffice department, because they insisted that the government should carry second-class mail at an enormous loss and Mr. Allen (Neb.) charging that the government was annually defrauded out of millions of dollars through the underweighing of mail matter. The resolution in a modified form is still pending.

BUTTERWORTH'S FUNERAL.

The President Attended and Prominent Men Were Pallbearers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Major Benjamin Butterworth, commissioner of patents, have been held at the Church of the Covenant, Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, the pastor, conducting the simple exercises of the Presbyterian church. The church was crowded, those present including President McKinley and all the members of his cabinet except Secretary Alger, who is ill, besides a number of senators and representatives, members of the bar and resident Washingtonians. After the services the remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery and deposited in a vault.

The honorary pallbearers were: Secretary C. N. Bliss, Speaker Thomas B. Reed, Senator Mark A. Hanna, Judge Jere M. Wilson, Judge William R. Day, assistant secretary of state; Judge Thos. Ryan, assistant secretary of the interior; Representative Joseph G. Cannon, Judge Louis E. McComas, Senator J. C. Burrows, Representative Amos C. Cummings, Mr. Greeley, assistant commissioner of patents, and Messrs. Julian C. Dowell and Henry W. Coffin.

The body bearers were examiners in the patent office.

LABOR LEADER COMING

President Mahan, of the Street Railway Employees,

WILL SPEAK HERE NEXT WEEK

Trades Council Will Arrange For a Big Meeting—New Delegates Seated—Constitution Changed—Treasurer's Accounts Countersigned.

The meeting of Trades council held last evening was largely attended, and a very interesting session was the result.

After the minutes were approved, Joseph Pollock, William Price and Peter Ruppel, Saggarmakers, 16; Daniel Swartz and Byron Foutts, Packers 19; and W. E. George, Porcelain Workers 6978, were seated as delegates from their respective unions.

The announcement was made that W. D. Mahan, of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees of America, would be in the city next Thursday, and Messrs. McCord, Allison, Appell, McKinnon and Eardley were appointed a committee to make arrangements for a public meeting. Mr. Mahan will be remembered as the gentleman who made an address at the Brotherhood picnic last year.

The amendment to the constitution was adopted. It authorizes the paying of a salary to the secretary and abolishes the office of corresponding secretary.

The trouble among the porcelain workers was discussed at length, and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiment of the council in the matter.

The trustees reported that they had examined the books of the treasurer and found them in splendid condition. Their semi-annual report was withheld until the next meeting.

SOWING THE WIND.

A Strong Cast Will Present It at the Grand Saturday Night.

"Sowing the Wind," the best play we have had from the pen of that most interesting of English playwrights, Mr. Sydney Grundy, is a drama that has perhaps been a source of more discussion than any dramatic production seen in late years. It is in four acts and has for its main theme the social inequality of the sexes, namely the unlimited field for man's moral diversion, and the small world in which our women must live to keep in the good graces of society.

The play will be presented at the Grand next Saturday evening. It will be remembered by many theater goers who were delighted with the presentation last season.

H. W. Taylor, representing Elroy's Stock company, is in the city today preparing for the appearance of the company here next week. They will open with "Wife For Wife" on Monday night.

ANOTHER SLIDE

This Time the Hillside Near Brady's is Slipping.

The hillside near Brady's cut began slipping last night, and this morning passengers on the early street cars were transferred while the tracks were being cleared of the dirt.

The slip at the Driven-From-Home hill has been removed, and no more trouble is expected from that quarter. The track in many places has sunk, and it is thought the company will experience a vast amount of trouble before the end of the wet weather, although every effort is being made to prevent delay and annoyance to passengers.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr. C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

Stop This Dangerous Practice.

Yesterday afternoon in West Sixth street no less than eight small boys riding horses lined up for a race, and went down the street at breakneck speed. If the practice is not stopped, somebody will be seriously hurt, as the youngsters pay no attention to where they are going.

No Contagion.

The quarantine was yesterday afternoon lifted from the residence of Andrew Hutchinson in Waterloo road, the patient, who had been suffering from diphtheria, having recovered.

With that action the health authorities declared the city to be free from contagion.

FRUITS FOR THE TABLE.

Mrs. Rorer Tells the Best Kinds—How They Should Be Served.

Fruits are more appetizing and, perhaps, more easily digested if taken in the early part of the day—whether or not before the breakfast must be determined by the eater.

Grapes, oranges and shaddock may be served before the cereal. Baked apples, peaches, baked bananas, figs, dates, prunes or stewed fruits should be served at the close of the breakfast.

Raisins, sultanas, dried figs and prunes should be soaked thoroughly, so that they may take up the same amount of water with which they have parted in the process of drying, and should then be heated just enough to soften the skins.

The subacid fruits, such as apples, figs, dates, peaches, persimmons, pears, prunes and apricots, are, perhaps, the best of the winter fruits and may be used to good advantage with animal foods.

Acid fruits must at all times be used most sparingly, especially by persons inclined to rheumatic troubles. The continued use of an orange or shaddock before breakfast will diminish the power of stomach digestion, for which reason they should be served with cereals or such foods as require only intestinal digestion.

The papaw and pineapple belong to a class alone. They contain a vegetable pepsin which assists in the digestion of the nitrogenous principles. These fruits, then, may be served with meats and will aid in their digestion. When served with bread and butter, they do not form so good a diet. They are more digestible raw than cooked, as the heat destroys the activity of the ferments.

Apples as a rule are more easily digested cooked than raw, although raw apples are more palatable.

The fashion of adding sugar to fruits should be avoided, as they have already been endowed with a sufficient amount of sugar, and as all the starch and cereals are converted into sugar any further amount would be stored in the system, to its detriment. If our bilious friends would throw aside their liver pills and with them sugar, they might be free from much discomfort.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer in Ladies' Home Journal.

EDWIN BOOTH.

The Great Tragedian Was Possessed of a Keen Sense of Humor.

Booth had a keen sense of humor, and among his intimates he was anything but the sad and gloomy man whom the outside world associated always with the character of the melancholy Dane of the stage. His published letters show how bright and cheerful he was usually in his familiar correspondence, and the following rhyming epistle is worth printing here as an example of his not infrequent efforts in that peculiar line. It came with an engraved portrait, neatly framed:

XMAS EVE, '79.

DEAR H.:

Think not that I forget,
Or that because the walkin's wet
Is why I haven't called as yet
Fumer la pipe, ou cigarette,
In your sanctum sanctorum.
'Tis but because I have to fry
Some other fish before they're dry.
This only is the reason why
My friends I do not bore 'em.
So, since I can't aller chez vous,
This deadhead I present in lieu
Of the one which here I shoulder,
Hoping this, too, may likewise call
Before the New Year learns to crawl
Or the old one grows much older.
But I know not, dear Hutton,
If you'll care a button
For this mug o' my own that I send,
Though 'tis told me as truth
(May be flattery, forsooth)
By some who are judges
That this very mug is
By far the best phiz

Of your friend
EDWIN BOOTH.

P. S.—You may spurn it, or dern it,
Or dash it, or dang it, or burn it,
Or mash it by puttin yer fat on.
Do anything—rather than hang it.
If you don't like it, dear Hutton.

The French Peasant.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving; yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams. Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze. After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gros betail and the other betail are allowed to roam at large.—Contemporary Review.

THE HERO OF NEW ORLEANS.

Sketches of the Career of Andrew Jackson.

His Sturdy Americanism and His Picturesque Personality.

Author of "The Empress Josephine," "The Life of George Washington," Etc., Etc.

sumed the shape of a pair of pistols when he turned upon his tormentors, his hair bristling with rage and fire flashing from his eyes, and said, pointing the muzzles ominously at their heads: "Now, you infernal villains, you shall dance for me. Dance, — you, dance!" And dance they did to a tune they could well understand and accompanied by advice interlarded with original piquancy of expletive, which was at once their admiration and despair.

The general's speech was so plentifully besprinkled with expletives that it is doubtful if he ever wholly eliminated them. He reminds one of the wartime teamster who joined the backwoods church. Shortly after his own pastor came upon him with his team stuck in the mud and addressing his refractory mules in the only form of speech which is supposed to prevail with these obstinate brutes.

"Why, Mr. Jones," exclaimed the parson, holding up his hands in horror, "you can't use such language after you have joined the church."

"I can't, hey. Well, parson, then I shall have to unjoin."

"OLD HICKORY."

Nearly 90 years have passed since that famous barbecue at Clover Bottom on a pleasant summer's day of 1809, and it would have slipped entirely from local annals were it not for an incident in which, of course, General Jackson figured. All the backwoods dignitaries were there from all the region roundabout, and the immense table, spread in the open air and loaded with every sort of tempting viand, was of such length that people seated at either end could hardly see each other. The general occupied the seat of honor at the upper end, and the crowd surged around, so dense and so noisy that one had to shout to make himself heard. Suddenly the general, who was engaged in conversation, heard some one passing casually remark, "Well, they'll finish Patten Anderson this time, I do expect."

Now, Anderson was Jackson's particular friend, and hearing this sinister prediction and being unable to get at the other end of the table, where the fight was going on, he leaped up and strode along the top of it, regardless of the smoking meats and steaming puddings. "Hold on, Patten; I'm coming!" he roared at the top of his voice, and at the same time putting his hand behind him and snapping the lid of his tobacco box. Strange to say, he had left his pistol at home, but the crowd took the clicking of the tobacco box cover for that of a pistol and cried out, "Don't shoot!" at the same time separating and leaving the man without inflicting further harm.

A year later the poor fellow was murdered.

ANDREW JACKSON IN 1819.

dered and his slayer let off with a comparatively light sentence despite the utmost effort of General Jackson to have him convicted and hung. On the side of prosecution at this trial was one Thomas H. Benton, then a young lawyer, with whom Jackson turned an intimate friendship, soon by his own fault making of him an inveterate enemy, but eventually in his later years his defender and eulogist. It was while this trial was progressing that, as Jackson was haranguing a crowd outside the courthouse, some fellow passing said, "Pshaw!" The general turned upon him with: "Who dares say 'Pshaw!' at me? By —, I'll knock any man's head off who says 'Pshaw!' at me!" Nobody said "Pshaw!" again that day.

During the year 1811 and merely to keep his hand in, as it were, Jackson had a bitter quarrel with Silas Dinsmore, Choctaw Indian agent, and finally, though the latter was more nearly right than his accuser, succeeded in driving him from the agency and eventually in bringing him to poverty.

At the breaking out of the 1812 war General Jackson, who had been appointed major general of militia on the death of General Conway, in 1804, quickly responded to the president's call to arms by offering him the immediate services of himself and 2,500 volunteers. Though accepted by President Madison with "peculiar satisfaction," the services of these volunteers were not called for until late that year, rendezvousing at Nashville in December. The weather was very cold for that section, and as the men were poorly equipped there were much suffering and grumbling. As Jackson was returning to his quarters, after having been out all night, one morning at dawn he overheard a petty officer complaining that he and others of his grade should be compelled to suffer without protection, while the officers of higher rank should be comfortably housed at taverns. "You d——d infernal scoundrel," roared the general, "sowing disaffection among my troops! Why, the quartermaster and myself have been up all night, making the men comfortable. Let me hear any more of such talk and I'll ram this redhot andiron down your throat."

He issued the first of a series of fiery, not to say bombastic, proclamations beginning, "Perish our friends, perish our wives, perish our children, the dearest pledges of heaven—nay, perish all earthly considerations—but let the honor and fame of a volunteer soldier be untarnished and immaculate!"

In view of the fact that the order for their voyage to New Orleans was countermanded after they had got as far as Natchez and that they did not then "sniff the red blood of battle" (though through no fault of theirs), this proclamation may seem rather ridiculous. It was on this expedition, which, though bloodless, was fatiguing and called for patient endurance, that General Jackson received his sobriquet of Old Hickory, from his toughness and elasticity. Fruitless of glory as it was, this expedition plunged the commander deep in debt, for the general government having at first protested his drafts for transportation, etc., rather than have the soldiers suffer he paid them himself.

This was a noble act, worthy of all praise, but the sequel to it was another quarrel, for which he should not be other than reprobated. His generous assumption of the soldiers' dues would have reduced him to penury but for the action of his friend Benton, who persistently pleaded with the secretary of war at Washington until he issued the necessary order for reimbursement. Having secured this restitution, Colonel Benton set out on his return to Tennessee, elated and gratified that he had been able so well to serve his friend. What was his astonishment, his rage, his indignation, to learn by the first courier he met from home that the very man he had so vastly benefited had served as second to an opponent of his brother in a duel. The brother was wounded, though not severely, and Benton lost no time in denouncing as an ingrate and worse this perfidious friend.

Notwithstanding his culpability Jackson took offense at this and swore, "By the Eternal, I'll horsewhip Tom Benton at sight!" But he found a different foe from the insignificant Swann, for when he undertook to carry out this threat he himself was wounded in the shoulder by Benton's brother Jesse and nearly bled to death. Accounts of this affray are conflicting, but none of them reflects credit on either party. This time, however, General Jackson had to swallow a dose of his own medicine, for the rights in the case, the honors and the victory were with his opponents.

With shattered shoulder and wounded arm the general was carried to his tavern, bleeding copiously, but full of fight and grit. The doctors assembled advised the amputation of the arm, their usual advice in such a case, but no, said the grim warrior, "I'll keep my arm." And he did, but the bullet remained there many years, and, together with the Dickinson wound, reminded him many a time and oft that the way of the transgressor is hard.

XI.

THE CREEK CAMPAIGN.

Meanwhile great events were taking place in the western territory, which, had the news of them been sooner received, might have prevented these rash men from indulging their senseless animosities. There was urgent need for the white settlers to unite and arm, for the Creek Indians had risen, instigated by Tecumseh and stimulated by British gold, and had massacred already 400 men, women and children. The news of the horrible massacre at Fort Mims, when more than 400 whites were slaughtered, on the 30th of August, was long in reaching Nashville, but on the 19th of September, two weeks after the Benton affray, the citizens held a mass meeting to determine what should be done.

Ing youth and maturity he may live to a green old age, and still be able to say with absolute truth, "I am a child myself." Youth is not a matter of years. Happiness is not a question of experiences. Youth is happiness and health is youth. The healthy person, young or old, will be a happy person. It is a simple matter to get the body into a healthy condition and then to keep it there. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest of health makers and health savers. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the appetite keen, the digestion and assimilation perfect, the liver active, the blood pure, the muscles strong, the brain clear, the nerves steady and every vital organ in the body healthy and vigorous. It makes firm, healthy flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. It does not make flabby flesh like cod liver oil. It purifies the blood and drives out the poisons of malaria and rheumatism. It is the best remedy for blood and skin diseases. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. Grateful patients, who had been given up to die, have permitted their experiences, names, addresses and photographs to be reproduced in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. The sufferer who wishes to investigate may write to any of these. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is sold by all medicine dealers, and only unscrupulous dealers will try to induce a customer to take some worthless substitute for the sake of a few pennies added profit. Send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, for a copy of Dr. Pierce's 1008-page illustrated book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. WHO SAYS SO?

Everybody Who has Used Them and Some of Them are East Liverpool People.

Who told you so? Neighbor So-and-so. Oh, well! That's all right. Testimony differs, doesn't it? The more some people say The less faith we have. But the right man's word Is taken at once. That's the difference. People want East Liverpool reference, Particularly in matters of health. We tell you Doan's Kidney Pills cure. But we are the makers of them. "Who says so?" counts here, doesn't it? East Liverpool people say so, And we give you their addresses. Perhaps you may know them. Active lives bring on kidney troubles. An example of this is:

Mr. G. H. Garner, of 168 Jackson st., the well-known manufacturer of ice cream, says: "I think my trouble started from a cold. It set in with a soreness and stiffness over my whole body; my appetite was poor, and I was troubled a good deal with a bloating at the stomach. There was also a urinary difficulty, and I felt in fact generally used up and as though I was breaking down. I tried two or three different remedies, but they did not do me the least good. I seem if anything to be getting worse. Having heard Doan's Kidney Pills so highly spoken of I made up my mind I would try them and procured a box of the W. and W. Pharmacy. I had not taken over half the box before I was entirely free from all my trouble, my appetite good and my old time vigor restored. I have recommended them to many of my friends, among them Mr. P. J. Green, V. S., and they all speak of them in the highest terms. I can honestly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills in every particular, knowing them to be No. 1 and well worth a trial by any one."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents, or sent by mail by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

A committee was appointed to confer with the governor, and on the 25th the legislature passed an act authorizing the enlistment of 2,500 volunteers. When it came to appoint a commander of this volunteer force, there was but one man to whom the thoughts of the people turned in this emergency, and he was lying prostrate in a darkened room, dangerously ill from wounds received through his own folly. The fracture of the shoulder was only just beginning to knit. He could not rise from his bed without suffering excruciating pains, yet he could dictate stirring appeals to the patriotism of his fellow citizens and from his chamber direct the mobilization of troops.

Within a fortnight he was in the saddle by a supreme effort of his indomitable will, but one arm was in a sling and he could not mount his horse without assistance. In this condition he met the troops at the appointed rendezvous, Fayetteville, more than 80 miles from his home, and had the pleasure of welcoming, among many others, the redoubtable Davy Crockett, who enlivened the camp with his wit and jollity.

This the most romantic episode of Jackson's adventurous life was fraught with severe labors. He was the soul and animating force of the rude soldiery and but for him most of them would have returned to their homes in disgust.

The Creek hostiles were scattered over a wide area, mostly in Alabama, but they had certain stockaded forts

BUILDING BOOM SURE

PLANS FOR MANY DWELLINGS

Are Now Being Prepared, and There Are Others In Prospect—Business Blocks and Potteries on the List—The Situation Is Most Encouraging.

Every indication points to a busy season for the contractors and builders of the city. Never before in the history of West Liverpool were the prospects so bright as they are at present.

A leading architect said this morning that he had never known a time when there were more buildings projected. He has now on hand 12 dwellings, and knows that plans are being prepared for eight others. He is also drawing plans for a business block and two potteries. All will be built in the city within the next six months.

Contractors are preparing for a rush, and think the season will be particularly active. Contracts have already been let for a number of buildings, and others are in prospect.

In connection with this, it might be said that not in 20 years has any January seen as much brick work as has already been done this month. The weather has permitted it, and masons have had the work.

HE GAVE IT UP.

Bishop Messenger Was Not Successful Here.

Bishop George H. Messenger, of the Free Will Methodist church, will leave the city for Pittsburg.

This has been officially announced by the gentleman. His rooms in Second street are poorly furnished, and all attempts to establish a Free Will church in this city have met with failure. Several weeks ago another worker arrived in the city, and after looking over the ground found so few to follow their doctrine that further work would be of no use. The bishop's efforts will be shipped the early part of the week.

Blossoming Like the Rose.

E. C. McVoy, the well known pottery salesman, reached here last night from California, where he has been in the interests of the Sebring company.

"The country is blossoming like the rose, commercially," said Mr. McVoy, "and the crockery dealers are getting their share of the business. Trade is better in all lines, and the Pacific coast has the brightest prospects it has had for years."

Changing Addresses.

S. E. Andrews, who has charge of the soliciting for the city directory, is making excellent progress, and he expects to have the book ready for delivery early in April.

Mr. Andrews desires that all persons changing their addresses between now and Feb. 15, will notify him at 186 Fourth street.

Gone to Florida.

F. D. Kitchell was a passenger on the Queen City last night when it left the city. He will go by water to New Orleans, and after remaining there a short time will continue his journey to Tampa, Florida. He will not return until spring when he will take the boat to New York, and come west by rail.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr. C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

The Rain.

The rain last night was general throughout this section, and was particularly heavy in the country across the river. Middle run was a foaming torrent, and some fences were washed away.

In the city no damage was done, but the paved streets were well cleaned.

Another Fire Drill.

Fire drill was conducted yesterday afternoon at the Third street school building, and in less than five minutes the 200 pupils were out of the building and lined up in the street.

The Sixth street pupils will be the next to go through the exercises.

Board Will Pay Bills.

The board of education will hold its last meeting for the month of January in the Central building tomorrow evening. The most important matter that will be brought up is the paying of a few bills.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

Wrinkled and old are those hands of hers,
Hard and full of the seams
Of labor and the years,
Knotted the knuckles
And creased and crinkled
The skin on the backs of them,
Dark veined and large,
With splashes of brown
Between the drawn tendons,
As if seared by tears,
Thick the nails and blunted,
Rough and with little ridges
Running the length of them,
Callous the palms
And lacking all pinkness and prettiness.
Old are those hands of hers,
Wrinkled and hard.
But, oh, what a story of Infinite tenderness
And love
Could they tell,
Those hands of a woman
Whose threescore years and ten
Have been passed in doing the good
That women do!

—W. J. Lampton in New York Sun.

THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say: "I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

English Jacobite Societies.

To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar for 1895," which includes the order of the White Roses, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (ponderous title), the Eastern Counties' (shade of Cromwell!) White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hunts) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration league, the Surrey White Rose league, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Grey Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Ludgate circus) if they so decide.—London Mail.

Bismarck of Jewish Descent.

Few people are aware that Prince Bismarck is of Hebrew descent. He derives his Jewish blood from his mother, whose father—Anastasius Menken, one of the favorite bureaucrats of Frederick the Great—was of Hebrew parentage. Although of late it has evidently appeared politic to the prince to countenance the anti-Semitic movement both in Germany and Austria, yet while in office he invariably showed himself a good friend to the Jewish nation and chose the Hebrew banker at Berlin, Baron von Bleichroeder, as his most trusted confidant. Indeed, in those days he was so well disposed toward the Jews that he even discussed the advisability of marrying his sons to Jewesses on the ground that it would bring money into the family again and likewise "improve both morally and physically the Bismarck breed."—International Review.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, JAN. 20.

It is quiet in Havana, but General Blanco is not giving his word that it will last long.

If the independent bakers do not break the biscuit trust even bread and water may become a luxury.

STATE AUDITOR GUILBERT estimates that it will cost over $5,000,000 to pay the expenses of Ohio for the next fiscal year. It's a large amount, but this state never did do anything by halves.

CONSUL GENERAL LEE probably did avert war with Spain, but he should have some one other than the Cuban correspondents to tell it to the world if he would have it generally believed.

If Mayor McKissor is all the different things the Cleveland Leader would have its readers believe, his chance for holding office again in that county are almost equal to his prospects of ever playing a golden harp and treading the golden streets.

The protests against the enactment of the immigration law will doubtless have little influence upon the members of congress, who have been made to understand that the great majority of people want something on that line that will prevent the practices whose continuation have become a curse to the nation.

That man Dole from Hawaii seems to be a very sensible gentleman. He does not complain because the government did not receive him with drums beating and colors flying, but appears content to transact his business in a business manner, asking none of that silly show of which there is entirely too much in this republic of ours.

The effort to throw William Jennings Bryan out of the Democratic party, or at least that portion of that organization controlled by Mr. Croker and his friends, may or may not be successful, but it will have no influence on the general result. A gentleman named McKinley will be the winner the next time the parties come together.

ENGLISH manufacturers are complaining bitterly because their trade with America is not as profitable as in former years. Exports are falling off at a rapid rate, and the demand for their goods is steadily decreasing. Score another victory for the Dingley bill. When the English producer who depends on America for a market is prosperous this country is not making money.

A STEP BACKWARD.

The legislature will take a step backward if it repeals the law that allows the relatives of the victim of a mob to recover damages from the county in which the lynching occurred. The measure was passed in the hope that it would work toward a better enforcement of the law, would prevent taxpayers from having any part in those disgraceful scenes enacted too often in this state where we boast of our civilization. If it has not been successful it has certainly done no harm, and there will doubtless be many opportunities in the future for the knowledge of its existence to restrain influential men from leading or becoming a part of an infuriated mob bent on taking human life. There cannot be too many safeguards of this character. If the law in question does not answer the purpose, pass another more stringent, more effective, but do not repeal any. Some day we may feel their need.

Big Insurance Policy.

What is probably the largest insurance policy ever written in the city, was placed by a local agent. It provides for an insurance of $30,000.

WORKING AT COLUMBUS

Legislators Are at Last Well Started

ECHOES OF THE LATE CONTEST

The Senatorial Battle Is Still the Subject For Conversation at the Capitol—Speaker Mason and His Methods Excite Comment—Many Bills.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—The legislature is devoting this week to clearing away the smoke and debris of the recent political battle, counting the losses and clearing decks for what is to come. The committees of both house and senate have been named, about two hundred bills have been introduced and the assembly is getting settled down to business. On account of the peculiar condition of affairs there has been considerable speculation regarding the make-up of the committees, but when the names were announced it was found that they were as good as could be expected. The past will not down, however, and the principal topic of gossip among the members is still the senatorial election and the scandals that have resulted. An investigation of charges of bribery was begun this week by committees from the house and senate, and it is expected that there will be many sensations. The charges now being inquired into are those made against Senator Hanna, by Representative Otis, of Hamilton county. The friends of the senator say that when the proper time comes charges just as grave will be made against the members of the anti-Hanna combination. Both sides are represented by long lists of able attorneys, and indications are that the investigation will be dragged through almost the full length of the session. Whether anything is proven or not, it is the intention of the Democrats to make as much noise over it as possible, with the hope that it may have a demoralizing effect on the Republicans at the next election.

Both house and senate investigating committees are made up of men unfriendly to Senator Hanna, and they propose to get all the political thunder possible out of the affair. The Democratic leaders and Republicans who were opposed to Hanna still maintain headquarters in the city, and they are engineering the investigation from behind the scenes. It is a safe prediction to make, however, that they will not be able to take from Senator Hanna his well earned commission.

Another disturbing element in the house is an effort being made to reorganize that body. Mr. Boxwell and some of his friends are behind this movement, but it is not likely that they will be successful. The coalition of Democrats and Republicans that elected Mr. Mason speaker is still intact, and the leaders claim that they have made accessions to their ranks. There are also many members on the regular Republican side who are opposed to any radical action in this direction. Aside from the question of practicability they believe that any such attempt would be unwise.

One of the Republicans who feels thus put the situation very pointedly when interviewed on the matter. "Even if we should succeed in getting a majority and ousting Mr. Mason from the speaker's chair, and reorganizing the house from top to bottom, what good would be accomplished? The legislature would be thrown into a state of chaos and all legislation would be stopped. The senate is Democratic, and the senators have threatened that if the house is reorganized not a bill from a Republican shall be passed by them. They are in a position to carry out their threat, and we might stay here all winter and do absolutely nothing. In the house itself the reorganization might be overturned any day when the fusion should show up with a majority, and then the speaker and clerks would not know whether they would be in office the next day or not. Such a state of affairs would not accord with the dignity of the assembly or redound to its credit. Therefore, I

The political feeling is intense, however, and it is sure to crop out during the whole session. An example of this occurred on Tuesday, when the list of senate committees was reported. Senator Alexander presented a written protest, charging the Democrats with unfairness in the arrangement and making a bitter personal attack on Senator Burke. After a long debate the protest was entered on the journal, but much time was used up by the useless discussion.

The committees of the house, appointed by Speaker Mason, all have Republican chairmen and a Republican majority, but that majority is only one of each committee. This large representation of Democrats has caused considerable comment. The Republican bolters, to whom Mr. Mason owes his elevation to the speakership, fared very well in his appointments. Mr. Jones, of Stark, is chairman of the finance committee, considered the most important post on the floor of the house; Mr. Scott, of Fulton, is chairman of the committee on taxation, a position almost equally responsible; Mr. Mannel, of Montgomery, is at the head of the committee of Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' home; Mr. Joyce, of Guernsey, is chairman of the insurance committee; Mr. Otis, of Hamilton, is chairman of the committee on municipal affairs; and Mr. Bramley will preside over the committee on railroads and telegraphs. These are the committees that do the bulk of work of the legislature, and Mr. Mason kept them in the hands of his friends. The only committee that ranks with them is that on the judiciary, of which Mr. Chase Stewart, of Clark county, is chairman. Mr. Stewart is the real leader on the regular Republican side of the house.

These committees are taking hold of the work and by next week the calendar will begin to show a list of bills for third reading and passage.

As has been previously predicted the bills introduced thus far have been mainly reform measures, or bills to repeal existing statutes.

The Newspaper Bogy.

E. L. Godkin in The Atlantic claims that the advertiser rather than the subscriber is now the newspaper bogy. He is the person before whom the publisher cowers and tries to please, and the advertiser is very indifferent about the opinions of a newspaper. What interests him is the amount or quality of its circulation. What he wants to know is how many people see it, not how many people agree with it. The consequence is that the newspapers of largest circulation, published in the great centers of population where most votes are cast, are less and less organs of opinion, especially in America. In fact, in some cases the advertisers use their influence, which is great and which the increasing competition between newspapers makes all the greater, to prevent the expression in newspapers of what is probably the prevailing local view of men or events. There are not many newspapers which can afford to defy a large advertiser.

How It Felt.

A worthy old gentleman who had never wandered far from his native township before went to Boston one day in response to an invitation to visit a relative.

The Bostonian, in showing his friend about town, took him to the top of a tall office building. They took a look at the marvelous landscape spread out before them and prepared to descend. They entered the elevator. It began its swift journey downward.

"Don't be frightened, Uncle Silas," said the younger man, as his visitor grasped his arm, shut his eyes and held on for life. "There is no danger."

"I wasn't afraid, George," gasped Uncle Silas, after they had stepped out of the elevator, "but I—I left my stomach up there."—Youth's Companion.

Happy Culmination of Courtship By Correspondence.

THEY MET LAST SATURDAY

For the First Time, Although Their Letters Had Been So Frequent as to Make Them Old Acquaintances and Bring About the Wedding.

The answering of an advertisement in a matrimonial paper will this evening result in wedding in this city.

Several months John De Steerois, a prosperous business man of Memphis, Tenn., advertised for a wife in the Climax, a monthly paper devoted to correspondence. The advertisement was seen by a number of people in this city, who induced Mrs. Angeline Dean, a widow lady who lives with her son in Jackson street, to answer the advertisement. She did, and in a short time received an answer. The couple continued to correspond regularly, and, as usual in such cases, photographs were exchanged.

Last week a letter was received from the gentleman saying he was coming to the city and he arrived Saturday evening.

He called on the lady of his choice, and their mutual admiration at once ripened into love and they decided to get married. A marriage license was issued and the happy couple will be married this evening at the residence of Rev. J. C. Taggart, East Market street.

The couple will leave on the 7:30 train for Cincinnati where they will spend a week. They will then go to Memphis where they will make their future home.

TWO PROPOSITIONS

Were Considered by the East End Land Company.

The East End land syndicate met this morning, but, owing to the fact that there was not a majority of the stockholders represented, nothing was done.

Two propositions were received, one from Edwin M. Knowles and Thomas B. Anderson offering to erect a six-kiln pottery for an $8,000 bonus, and one from Robert Hall and J. J. Purinton asking a bonus of $10,000 for the same size plant.

The propositions were thoroughly discussed, and the majority of those present were in favor of accepting the best offer, provided the parties would take land for the bonus.

COUNTY ASKED TO PAY

Eight Thousand Dollars For an Accident.

FELL OFF A LISBON BRIDGE

Frank Snyder, a Coal Miner, Suffered Injuries Which Will Not Allow Him to Pursue His Avocation--Commissioners Blamed.

LISBON, Jan. 20.—[Special]—The county commissioners were made defendants this morning in an action for $8,000 damages filed by Frank Snyder, of this place.

Two months ago Snyder was walking across what is known as Mill Site bridge, spanning a stream of water that crosses East Walnut street. Owing to the darkness, he could not see clearly, and fell over an eight-foot embankment at the west side of the bridge, alighting on his head and shoulders. The accident caused serious injury to his spinal cord and partial paralysis of upper and lower extremities. He claims the commissioners are liable in not having guard rails there, and in having failed to construct the bridge so as to be in line with the county road. Snyder was a coal miner before the accident, and thinks he will never again be able to support himself by manual labor.

William Humphrey, an aged resident of Hanover township, was adjudged insane today. He will be sent to Newburg.

Marriage licenses were issued to Harry Webber and Ida May Smith, John S. Chamberlain and Berth Arehart.

A FAMOUS MULBERRY TREE.

Planted by Milton in Christ's College Gardens, Cambridge.

In the gardens of Christ's college, Cambridge, stands a venerable mulberry tree, which, tradition says, was planted by Milton during the time when he was a student at the university. This would be between the years 1624 and 1632, for the following copy, from the Latin of his entry of admission, accurately fixes the former date, and his admission to the degree of M. A., to which he proceeded in the latter year, ended his intimate connection with the university: "John Milton, native of London, son of John Milton, was initiated in the elements of letters under Mr. Gill, master of St. Paul's school; was admitted a lesser pensioner Feb. 12, 1624, under Mr. Chappell and paid entrance fee, 10s." He was then 16 years and 2 months old.

The tree so intimately associated with his name is now much decayed, but in order to preserve it as much as possible from the ravages of time many of the branches have been covered with sheet lead and are further supported by stout wooden props, while the trunk has been buried in a mound of earth. The luxuriance of the foliage and the crop of fruit which it annually bears are proof of its vitality, but to insure against accidents and perpetuate the tree an offshoot has been planted close by. In the event of a bough breaking and falling it is divided with even justice among the fellows of the college, and many pieces are thus preserved as mementos of the poet. It was during his residence at Cambridge that he composed his ode, "On the Morning of Christ's Nativity." "Lycidas," too, is intimately connected with Milton's life at the university, since it was written in memory of Edward King, his college friend and contemporary, with whom he doubtless shared the same rooms.

In those days students did not, as now, occupy separate apartments, as witness the original statutes of the college, "In which chambers our wish is that the fellows sleep two and two, but the scholars four and four," in consequence of which a much closer intimacy was formed among them than is now possible. Dr. Johnson relates that Milton was flogged at Cambridge, but the fact is doubtful, though there is reason to suppose that he had differences with the authorities in the earlier part of his college career, since he was transferred from his original tutor. This tree is still pointed out to visitors and was until recent years especially marked by a bough of mistletoe growing upon it.—Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper.

The Bulldog a Good Dog.

No member of the canine family has been more persistently maligned than the bulldog. Writers who have no intimate knowledge of the dog and his attributes have described him as stupidly ferocious, and illustrators have pictured him as a sort of semiwild beast, till the general public has come to look upon him as dangerous.

"Give a dog a bad name," is an old saw, and perhaps a true one, but when it is applied to the bulldog it is manifestly unjust. Writers, too, have fallen into grave error in claiming that the bulldog is deficient not only in affection, but in intelligence.

Stonehenge, who is considered one of the greatest of canine scientists, claims that the bulldog's brain is relatively larger than that of the spaniel, which dog is generally considered to be the most intelligent of the canine race, while the bulldog's affection is never to be doubted.—Outing.

THE PIGEON SHOOTERS.

Hundreds Will Participate In the Grand American Handicap.

More than 200 pigeon shooters from all parts of the United States and Canada will participate in the grand American handicap to be held at Elkwood park, Long Branch, early in March.
The entries do not close for some weeks
yet, but scores of names have been received, which indicates the widespread interest that is being taken by the famous wing shots of America in the contest.

The entries will be more numerous and the average efficiency higher than at any great shoot ever held in America or Europe, the Grand Prix at Monte Carlo not excepted. Last year a grand American handicap called out more participants than ever assembled at Monte Carlo, and it is to the remarkable success of this affair that the Interstate Sporting association attributes the revival of interest in live and clay pigeon shooting in all parts of the country.

Scene In the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T.
W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense uproar called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant"
—or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives'
hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn
the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign.
One saw at a glance how much pro-founder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief
courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once,
"but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train.
The fellow hadn't opened the car door
till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 25 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the highest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louisville Post.

Eugene Sue's Pranks.

The father of Eugene Sue was a physician with exalted patients all over Europe, who sent him the choicest wines. The emperor of Austria, for instance, had contributed tokay, the king of Prussia rare hock, Queen Christina of Spain priceless alicante, Prince Metternich genuine cachet d'or, and so on.
The whole was kept in a large iron cupboard in the study of the learned physician, known as the Elzevir library.
Eugene was then a college freshman, and, having procured a skeleton key to the closet, with his friends, Adolphe, Adam, Veron and others, proceeded every night to investigate the contents of the bottles. Not wishing to have their explorations prematurely stopped, they took the precaution to fill up the partially exhausted flasks with water and then to reseal them. When, for a long time afterward, the doctor brought forth samples of his precious stock for the delectation of guests worthy of it, and the company tasted it with a due sense of awe, it was privately felt that the celebrity of these great brands was all moonshine, that ordinary table d'hote bordeaux was preferable to them. But nobody dared to say so, and it was only after the death of his dreaded parent that the novelist confessed the sacrilege.

He Got a Mate.

A sea captain called at a village inn
and asked the landlady, a young widow:
"Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my mate."

"I am very sorry for you, Mr. —,"
she said, smiling. "I want a mate, too, and cannot get one. As we are in the same position, I'll tell you what I'll do
—if you'll be mine, I will be yours."

He closed with the bargain, and, the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.—Pearson's Weekly.

WHAT SHE MOST RESENTED.

She Could Readily Forgive and Forget
Most Anything But This.

She swept into the office of the manager with cyclonic perturbation. Anybody could see from the haughty superiority of her manner that if she was not yet a star she fully intended to be
one. In her hand was a newspaper, which she laid on the desk before the manager.

"Now, really, Miss Frostleigh," he said somewhat impatiently, "I am not responsible for what appears in the newspapers about you. I can't do anything more than say I am sorry you should have any troubles. That's all anybody does for me when I get into debt."

"Have you read that cruel article about my husband applying for a divorce?"

"Yes—that is to say, I glanced over the headlines."

"You can at least tell me where I can find the editor."

"Now, take my advice and keep away. It won't do you the least bit of good."

"But don't you think I have a right to complain?"

"Of course. It was too bad. I have no doubt it was a base calumny to say you cut his allowance down to $12 a week."

"I could have borne that," she murmured.

"And I can understand it was very annoying to have it said that you put him out of a cab one night and made him walk three miles to the depot."

"That was not the cruelest part of it, though."

"And it was naturally embarrassing to have it asserted in cold type that in a fit of jealous pique you knocked him down and then jumped on him."

"Do you think the papers in all of the cities printed that?" she inquired.

"In all probability they did. I'm sorry for the worry it must cause you."

"That wasn't all!" she exclaimed.

"I know. What you refer to is the insinuation that he is your seventh husband."

"That isn't the worst either," she said, with a heartbreaking sob. "They spelled my name wrong!"—Detroit Free Press.

WARTIME RECOLLECTIONS.

The Old Soldier Tells of His Going Away
and of His Home Coming.

"My last recollection of the camp in which we were mustered in," said the old soldier, "was of my mother. We had been in camp for days, for weeks, in fact, filling up the regiment and drilling and getting equipped, and getting ready generally. Finally we were mustered in, and the next day after that we started.

"It was nightfall when we fell in for the last time in the company streets of our first camp and marched out and formed on the color line. There was a great crowd there, relatives and friends and sightseers come to see the regiment off. In front of my own company I could see my father and mother, come to see the last of their boy before he went to war. I was the apple of my mother's eye. I knew that, and I had expected to see her break down completely when the regiment marched away, but she stood as firm as a rock.

"When the regiment came home, we marched up through the same street that we had marched down years before —night again, it was, too—with a band of music, with fireworks flying everywhere, and with crowds on the sidewalk cheering, to the town hall, where there was a banquet, with a speech from the mayor, and so on. When this was nearly over, my father and my brother, who had come to meet me, went home
to tell my mother I was coming.

"Home was half a mile or more away. A bunch of us, men of the regiment, started from the hall together.
They fell off one after another, until finally I went on alone along the familiar street. It was bright moonlight.
Far ahead, at the corner of the street down which I must turn for home, I saw her. She was waiting.

"When I had come to her, she lifted up her hands and pronounced my name, that was all, and then her arms were about my neck, and my old blue overcoat was wet with her falling tears.
Her son had come home."—New York

AN OFFICIAL'S OPINION

Vice President McCrea Thinks Railroads Right.

THE LAW IS CLEARLY DEFINED

We Cannot See How the Complaint Made to the Inter-State Commerce Commission Through Representative Acheson Will Stand—Messengers Are Sanguine.

The movement of the commercial messengers in taking their grievance to the Inter-State Commerce commission has excited much interest in Pittsburg and the smaller towns where they do business. Railroad men are especially interested, and the opinions of officials are eagerly sought. James McCrea, vice president of the Pennsylvania company, is out in a statement in which he says:

"We do not fear that the Inter-State Commerce commission will interfere in the matter. The rights and privileges of express companies and commercial messengers have been so clearly outlined by the courts that there is no reason to believe we will be required to change our position."

This seems to represent the sentiment of the railroad men. The messengers are just as confident that the government will interfere in their behalf.

On the River.

The river continues to fall but the rain of last night will cause it to rise again, as it was general in the upper valleys. The river will probably start tomorrow. Today the marks at the Market street wharf today registered 14 feet and falling.

The Queen City passed down last evening with a good trip. The Urania is the down boat this evening.

The Bedford has been tied in at Parkersburg for several weeks, but passed up today with a good trip.

The steamer Hudson will be put in the trade early in the spring. The hull will be almost new when it is off the ways.

Passed up—Fallia and H. F. Frisbie. Down—Urania and Mariner.

To Be Married Today.

The Beaver Falls Tribune of yesterday has the following to say of young people who are well known in this city: "James Stoddard, of the East Palestine Pottery Company, and Miss Myrtle M. Patterson, of East Palestine, will be married by Rev. Cartwright, of New Brighton, at the home of Nick Walsh, on Fifth avenue, at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The young folks are both well known in society circles at East Palestine and have a large number of acquaintances in this place."

Flooded the Office.

There was a general shift in the freight office this morning. A portion of the roof was taken off yesterday by the carpenters who are making the new addition, and when it rained during the night the water came through the wooden ceiling in streams.

Some old records were water soaked, and Agent Thomas' office was well flooded. Most of the desks were removed to other parts of the office, and some of the clerks occupied the office in the rear of the ware room.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr. C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

Two Extra Trains.

Freight business on the Cleveland and Pittsburg river division is booming. Since the opening of the Jefferson by the new company at Steubenville, the activity of the Aetna-Standard, Mingo, and the iron and steel plants of Martin's Ferry and Bellaire, the river division is sending down about two extra freights per day. One of these goes as far as Mingo, the other through to Bellaire.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Michael King took place this morning from St. Aloysius church and was largely attended. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

The funeral of George W. Ward took place this afternoon from his late home in the East End, Reverend Salmon officiating. Interment was made at Spring Grove.

At the Depot.

The force at the freight depot were busy yesterday, but the number of cars of crockery sent out did not reach the expectations of the experts. The record will be maintained today.

SOUND AND GAGGED THE FAMILY.

Robbers Robbed the House, Ate Breakfast and Departed on a Handcar.

LIMA, O., Jan. 20.—Five masked men entered the residence of Mrs. Anna Gratz, two miles east of Beaver Dam, this county, and at the point of a revolver, bound and gagged every member of the household, consisting of Mrs. Gratz, a daughter, three sons, aged from 10 to 18 years, and two farm hands, John Huenstein and Adolph Follet. Leaving one of their number to guard their victims, the remaining four robbers looted the house, securing about $50 in money, two gold watches and some jewelry, after which they repaired to the kitchen, cooked themselves a breakfast and left.

About an hour later one of the family succeeded in getting free and gave the alarm. It was ascertained that the robbers had stolen a handcar on the Lake Erie and Western road. Bloodhounds were sent from this city, but the trail was too old.

GLADSTONE TOLERABLY WELL.

Sensational Reports of Dangerous Illness Are Denied.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The publication of The Pall Mall Gazette report saying Mr. Gladstone was in dangerous health caused numbers of inquiries to be made at 4 Whitehall court, S. W., the residence of Henry Gladstone, the aged statesman's son. Mrs. Henry Gladstone and George Armistead, an intimate friend of the family, both said there was nothing in the latest information they had received to justify the alarmist reports.

His Family Denies He Is In Dangerous Health.

Mr. Gladstone has been suffering from a return of his neuralgia. They said he was better and that his physicians were satisfied with his progress towards recovery.

SAXTON LOST THE SUIT.

Must Pay $30,000 For Alienation of the Affection of George's Wife.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—George D. Saxton, a brother of Mrs. McKinley, wife of the president, will have to pay Sample C. George $30,000 for the alienation of the affections of the latter's wife. Such is the decision of the supreme court, just handed down.

Saxton is quite wealthy, and is the owner of the Saxton block in Canton. George alleges that Saxton became intimate with his wife and induced her to go west. She secured a divorce in Lincoln county, South Dakota, the charges being that Saxton paid all expenses. The case was bitterly fought.

PROMINENT MAN KILLED.

Man Helping Him Move Accidentally Shot Him at Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 20.—Robert G. Hazlett, a prominent citizen, was shot through the heart by Ray H. Lee and fell back into the arms of his wife, expiring almost instantly, while engaged in moving to another residence. He had employed Lee to assist in handling his household goods.

Lee was handling a target rifle when the weapon was discharged, the bullet striking Hazlett, who exclaimed "my God, I'm shot," and, falling back, would have struck the floor had not his wife caught him. After a brief struggle he expired.

The statement made by Lee that the shooting was accidental was corroborated by Mrs. Hazlett and also by her daughter.

Woman's "Emancipation" Fight.

Mrs. Brierly, the would be motorman, has been taken off the brake, and she no longer controls the power on an electric car. No complaint was made of her work, but the male employees made a fuss, saying that her position on the front platform kept a man out of a job, and so to keep peace in his force the superintendent was obliged to let her go.

HAPPENED IN THIS STATE.

Harry Hicks, a Niles shoemaker, made an assignment.

George C. Nelson, aged 50, was killed by a railroad engine at Akron.

Al Shriever of Alliance, while digging a well at Suffield, fell into the well and received fatal injuries.

Captain H. L. Kuhns, manager of the Hurford House, Canton, has been indicted by the grand jury for selling liquor on Sunday.

The 7-year-old son of Abram Blackstock was run down by a freight at Empire, had an arm cut off and was otherwise injured.

John Riley was blown 30 feet, killed and horribly mangled by a gas explosion at a tank in the Cleveland shipbuilding yards at Lorain.

THE PROBERS HALTED.

Witnesses Refused to Testify at Columbus.

MAY BE PUNISHED FOR CONTEMPT.

The Committee Asked the Senate Today to Act Against Those Refusing to Give Testimony—Reorganization Beaten In the House.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—The investigation into the charges of bribery at the recent election of a United States senator has reached a crisis. No matter what may be the final result of the investigation, there will likely be several witnesses arrested for contempt. The committee had seven witnesses subpoenaed, but they were not examined because none of them would testify.

The senate committee, Tuesday night, examined Samuel Pentland, Frank P. Ross, W. F. Truesdale and Shepherd M. Dunlap, who then asked to confer with their attorneys, and were excused until last night for that purpose. When they appeared last night they said their attorneys held that the senate had no jurisdiction in the investigation of the alleged bribery of a member of the house, and had advised them not to answer any further questions before the committee. They all followed the advice of their attorneys, as did Mr. Hollenbeck, who was not on the stand last night. When the committee found that the advice of attorneys was being followed uniformly by all witnesses called, the open session was closed and the committee went into executive session on plans for further procedure.

Each witness was told that he was held under service by the committee, and should report tonight at 7:30 or sooner if called for. Among the cases cited is that of Daniel Dalton, who was subpoenaed in 1886 to bring forged tally sheets before a legislative committee. Dalton refused and was brought before the house for contempt. Dalton was subpoenaed to produce public records in his custody, and the witnesses last night claim they are asked to produce private property. The committee made a partial report to the senate today. The committee asked the senate to punish the witnesses for contempt and to give the investigators full authority. Garfield voted against the report in committee.

In the house there was a test vote on reorganization and it resulted in a vote of 58 to 50 against the proposed change. Speaker Mason in giving some Hanna men the best chairmanships and other preferred places has quieted the reorganization agitation. The Hanna senatorial investigating committee is doing nothing.

The C. H. & D. Trouble.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—Grand Master Sargent, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, is in the city in secret conference with employees of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad. Superintendent Waldo of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton says there is no prospect of a strike among their employees. He says they are all loyal, and that, although they have presented grievances, a way will be found to give them satisfaction without compelling them to resort to a strike.

Suicided Before His Sweetheart.

RAVENNA, Jan. 20.—While walking with his sweetheart Cornelius D. Eathing, a well-known young man of this city, the son of prominent parents, quarreled with the young woman. Suddenly he pulled a revolver and without a word of warning, sent a bullet through his brain, falling dead at his sweetheart's feet. The young woman is prostrated by the shock and her condition is serious. She cannot talk about the tragedy.

Annual Woodchopping Bee.

CANAL DOVER, Jan. 20.—The Zoarites held their annual Holzsaegererei, or woodchopping and sawing bee. The Zoar society bakers make bread for all the members, and immediately after the holidays of each year woodchoppers are sent out to cut down and haul to the big bakery all the hickory trees they can find. This is the only kind of wood used in baking.

Found Dead in a Bathtub.

CANTON, Jan. 20.—The body of Luther Hugh, a traveling man for a Johnstown (N. Y.) medicine company, was found in a hotel here under circumstances indicating self-destruction. Hugh has been here for ten days, too ill to do business, and at times was very despondent. He has been heard to threaten his life. He was found drowned in a bathtub full of water.

The Ohio River Rising.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—Reports of heavy rain come from the entire Ohio valley watershed. The rains of two or three days ago saturated the ground and left all streams bank full. Should the rain stop now a stage of at least 52 feet in the Ohio would surely follow. The stage of water was 45 feet 2 inches and rising 5 inches per hour, at 1 a. m.

Desperate Fight on a Train.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—A desperate fight, which resulted in the death of one man, occurred on an Erie railway train near Willson. Special Officer McNabb was attacked by four tramps and pelted with iron ore. He shot two of them—Alfred Green and John Green. The former, who is now in the hospital, will die.

In the New York directory for 1813 is the entry, "Peter Cooper, machinist, 98 Elm street." Elm street was then one of the poorer localities.

REV. DR. HALL MUST REMAIN.

His New York Church Refuses to Accept His Resignation.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The congregation of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church has declined to accept the resignation of its pastor, Rev. Dr. John Hall. Amid great enthusiasm strong resolutions were adopted declining to accept or approve of his resignation. The congregation also declined to appoint commissioners to the presbytery to act with the pastor on his resignation.

Killed Wife and Sister-in-Law.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 20.—Edwin A. Duff, aged 45 years, has shot and killed his wife and sister-in-law while they were walking near the corner of Greene and Hamilton streets. Marital troubles.

Tramps' Terrible Deed.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 20.—Great excitement prevailed here and at Oliver over an assault on Mrs. John Sherbaugh, a Slav woman, at Oliver, by tramps, who, when arrested, gave their names as Jack White, James H. Stevenson, William Johnson and Edward Worth. The first three were colored and Johnson is a white boy. Mrs. Sherbaugh was alone.

Merry Expects No Mercy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The case of Chris. Merry and James Smith, accused of killing Mrs. Merry, will go to the jury today. Merry expects no mercy. Smith does. "The jury will hang me," Merry repeated many times. He made practically no defense and would not go on the witness stand.

Engineers May Resume Work.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—At the conference of the Federation of Master Engineers, called to consider the situation in view of the withdrawal of the 48-hour demand, it was resolved to reopen the works on Monday next, provided the union accept the conditions of management mutually adjusted at the recent Westminster conference.

NO BENEFIT TO CUBA.

Hitt Talks Against Belligerency Resolution.

HE SPOKE FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Major McKinley a Friend of the Rebels,
but Thinks Recognition Would Do Them Harm — Speaker Reed Again Blocks the Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The question of granting belligerent rights to the Cuban insurgents has again been argued in the house, but, as on the day before, the minority hurled itself against a stone wall. On the only vote taken, a motion designated to overrule the decision of the speaker and direct the committee on foreign affairs to report without further delay the Cuban resolution passed by the senate at the last session, the Republicans stood solid and voted to sustain the chair.

The galleries, as on the day before, were banked to the doors, and there was considerable excitement throughout the early part of the session when the members of the minority were successively presenting all sorts of amendments bearing on the Cuban question for the purpose of embarrassing the majority. During the general debate Chairman Hitt of the foreign affairs committee made an impressive speech of less than an hour, explaining at length the situation which made action by congress inadvisable. He spoke with impassioned words of the president's sympathy with the struggle for Cuban independence and the achievements of the present administration.

The release of American prisoners in Cuba, the recall of Weyler, the abandonment of the policy of concentration and the autonomy scheme he attributed to the firm attitude of the president, and contrasted these results with the inaction of the last administration.

The president had pointed out, Mr. Hitt said, that the recognition of belligerence would, in fact, weigh most heavily on the Cubans, and this fact disclosed the spirit animating the executive. With the declaration of belligerency the Spanish cruisers were free beyond the three-mile limit of Cuba to harass on the high seas those ships carrying supplies to Cuba.

The Cubans themselves recognized that belligerency meant the cutting off of their supplies from this country, but they hoped, and had expressed themselves to Mr. Hitt, that it would bring a stray shot from a Spanish cruiser on the high seas directed against an American ship, which would inflame the American people and sweep the United States into a war with Spain.

Mr. Hitt referred to the critical condition in Havana and the readiness of our warships for emergencies. What the next step would be he could not foretell.

He asserted that the president must assume the responsibility of any action

which might eventuate in war and appealed to both sides of the chamber to patriotically support the executive if a crisis should come.

Mr. Dinsmore (Ark.), the leading member of the committee on foreign affairs, replied to him, and Messrs. Adams (Rep., Pa.), chairman of the Cuban sub-committee of the same committee, Berry (Dem., Ky.) and Wheeler (Dem., Ky.) also addressed the house during the general debate. The debate will close today at 4 o'clock under the arrangement made, when a final test will be made on a motion, of which Mr. Williams (Dem., Miss.) gave notice, to recommit the bill with instructions to report back the Cuban resolution as a rider.

TELLER SILVER RESOLUTION.

Vest Gave Notice He Would Move Its Consideration Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Mr. Vest gave notice in the senate that he would move today to take up for consideration the Teller resolution reported by the finance committee providing that bonds of the United States may be paid in standard silver dollars.

Mr. Vest's notice seems to indicate an intention on the part of some senators to displace, temporarily, the Hawaiian annexation treaty, as it is evident, as Mr. White (Cal.) said that the consideration of the resolution would "precipitate some slight discussion."

Bryan and Others Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The senate confirmed these nominations: Charles Page Bryan to be minister to Brazil; E. H. Conger of Iowa to be minister to China. To be consuls: G. C. E. Weber of Ohio at Neuremberg, W. W. Touvelle of Ohio at Belfast, S. M. Taylor of Ohio at Glasgow, B. F. Stone of Ohio at Huddersfield, England, Rufus Fleming of Ohio at Edinburgh.

For Admission of Territories.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The house confirmed these nominations: Charles Page Bryan to be minister to Brazil; E. H. Conger of Iowa to be minister to China. To be consuls: G. C. E. Weber of Ohio at Neuremberg, W. W. Touvelle of Ohio at Belfast, S. M. Taylor of Ohio at Glasgow, B. F. Stone of Ohio at Huddersfield, England, Rufus Fleming of Ohio at Edinburgh.

AGAINST GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

A Railroad President's Letter to a Populist Editor in Kansas.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—President Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe has written a letter to the editor of a Kansas Populist paper replying to a communication published in that paper, citing the number of people killed by the railroads of the United States as a reason why these railroads should be put under government control. Mr. Ripley points out that the railways carry the whole population of the state of Kansas two and a half times over before one passenger is killed; that last year the trains on the railways in Kansas ran over 800,000 miles, yet only one employee's life was sacrificed for every 431,000 miles.

Of others killed in the United States in 1896, the reports show that 3,811 were trespassers, that is to say, out of every 22 persons killed, 19 were killed because they were breaking the law and were in places where the railway people had no reason to expect to find them.

The owners of railways are entirely indifferent to government ownership, and he points out that the strongest plea made in behalf of the government ownership is that of T. B. Blackstone, president of the Chicago and Alton road, who urged it as a measure of justice to the railway investors. There is no holder of railway securities, he says, who does not believe that those securities would be advanced in value if there was any prospect of the government buying them.

He says the best managed railways of the world are the English. They are all owned and operated by private companies. Next to them in good management, he states, are the private owned lines of Holland and France, while the government-owned lines in France are very bad.

OUTLAW GANG BROKEN UP.

American and Mexican Officers Killed
Some of Black Jack's Men.

TUCSON, A. T., Jan. 20.—It is reported that Black Jack's gang of outlaws was surrounded in the mountains near the boundary line by several posses, including the posse sent out by the Mexican government, and a fight occurred, in which one of the robbers was killed and four captured.

Two attempted to escape after being caught and were shot in flight. The other two were in the hands of the Mexican officers, and it is claimed they met death in like manner. The remainder of the freebooters went in a southerly direction, and are supposed in the interior of Mexico in the Sierra Madre mountains.

THE WELCOME TO DOLE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Major Heistand, the army representative, and Lieutenant Commander Phelps, who has definitely accepted the assignment to represent the navy in receiving President Dole of Hawaii, have reported to Mr. Cridler and they will soon leave for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the reception and entertainment of President Dole of Hawaii, who is expected to arrive in Chicago Saturday morning on the Chicago and Northwestern overland limited train.

MRS NACK PENITENT.

Thinks She Can Atone For Murder by Being Good.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Augusta Nack, the accomplice of Martin Thorn in the murder of William Guldensuppe last June, has been taken to Auburn prison to serve a sentence of 15 years' imprisonment for the crime.

Before she boarded the train the murderer said to several persons with her: "I am glad that I shall be punished for the crime I committed. I shall atone for my past misdeeds by being a model prisoner and giving everyone as little trouble as I possibly can."

Captain Murphy Not Guilty.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 20.—Captain Murphy, who was on trial in the United States district court, charged with filibustering in connection with the steamer Laurada, has been declared not guilty.

OPERATORS FIGHTING.

Delaying Work of Coal Conference at Chicago.

The Old Trouble Between Ohio and Pennsylvania Operators Crops Out Again—A Uniform Working Day of Nine Hours Will Be Recommended.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Two brief sessions were held by the interstate bituminous coal operators and miners yesterday and adjournment was taken until today, pending the scale committee's report.

From a public point of view everything in and about the convention appears calm, but in the secrecy of the scale committee chamber the old war between operators of the Ohio and Pennsylvania fields was fiercely raging.

Early in the session of the committee the question of hours of labor was thoroughly gone over. Representatives of the workmen favored an eight-hour day, but their principal contention was for a uniform day in place of the varying hours now established in the different states. The operators were willing to meet them half way, and it is understood a uniform working day of nine hours will be recommended to the convention.

The knotty problem of state differentials was then taken up. This brought Ohio and Pennsylvania operators together with a crash. In order to allow them full swing the regular committee took a recess until evening. The Ohio and Pennsylvania operators then went into session by themselves. The issue between these two states is of years' standing. Ohio operators have hitherto succeeded in securing a rate of 5 to 10 cents per ton below the Pennsylvania scale, while it is claimed by the Pennsylvania people that Ohio operators obtain 25 to 30 cents more per ton for their output. The fight to remove this difference on one side and to retain on the other is therefore a bitter one.

It is probable that the scale committee will be unable to agree on all matters before them, and will make their troubles known to the full convention, asking for further instruction.

The Pennsylvania and Ohio members of the scale committee did not reach an agreement last night, but it is probable that today they will agree on a differential of 4 cents. Pennsylvania wants 9 cents and the Ohio men are willing to grant 4.

GARY, SHAW OR MALSTER.

Judge McComas' Chance to Succeed Gorman Grows Smaller.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 20.—The senate and house have met in joint session and, after casting one ballot for United States senator to succeed Arthur P. Gorman, adjourned.

The vote cast for Judge McComas shows an increase of two over that received by him the day before. One of these came from Senator Dobler of Baltimore city, who left the Shaw ranks, and the other from Delegate Dryden of Somerset, who was absent on the first day of the balloting. Major Shaw's loss, through the desertion of Senator Dobler, was made up by the accession of Delegate Robinson of Baltimore city, who had voted for General Shryock. Senator Gorman gained a vote in the person of Senator Applegarth, who had voted for Judge Henry Page. The outcome of the day's balloting was a distinct disappointment to the followers of Judge McComas, they having confidently expected a gain of at least eight more votes than they got. Their failure is now thought to indicate the possible reappearance of Postmaster General Gary as a candidate, as these votes are looked upon as his whenever he wants them.

Indications of an attempt at coalition between the "faithful 11" and the Democratic members for the purpose of electing a Baltimore city man are growing stronger every hour. Such a combination would probably mean Shaw or Malster.

The ballot taken gave McComas, 36; Shaw, 11; Shryock, 2; Milliken, 2; Barber, 6; Gorman, 46; Findlay, 6; Parran, 6; Lowendes, 1. Total, 113; necessary to a choice, 57; absent, 4.

GOVERNMENT ARMOR PLANT.

Secretary Long Tells a Committee He Expects Several Bids.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Secretary Long, accompanied by Chief Constructor Hichborn, Chief O'Neill of the bureau of ordinance and Judge Advocate General Lenley, has appeared before the senate committee on naval affairs. The secretary said, in response to questions, that the navy department had prepared full plans and specifications calling for an armor plant under the last naval appropriation bill, and that estimates on the cost of land, tools and machinery necessary to equip the plant had been made. The bids were to be opened on the 20th inst., and he thought several bids would be made.

Secretary Long said also that he view of the delay in securing a government plant he believed that he could make a contract for the supply of armor plate for the Illinois, Alabama and Wisconsin, now under course of construction, which would be ready whenever the ships were ready to receive it at the rate of $400 per ton. The secretary recommended that an arrangement to this effect be made. From the secretary's statement, corroborated by statements by Commodore Hichborn and Captain O'Neill, it appears that the cost of a government plant, properly equipped, would be from $3,500,000 to $4,500,000.

A DEFENDER OF DOLE.

Senator Morgan Answered Attacks.
Cleveland an Annexationist.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator Morgan continued his speech in advocacy of the Hawaiian annexation treaty in the executive session of the senate and announced at the conclusion that he would require one more day in which to complete his presentation of the subject.

He repeated his assertion that President Cleveland was favorable to the acquisition of the islands and again expressed the opinion that it was his intention to have restored Queen Liliuokalani and to have negotiated with her a treaty of annexation.

Mr. Morgan took up the criticism upon the present government of Hawaii, defending it in strong terms and eulogizing Mr. Dole as one of the most competent rulers of the time. He said that the people naturally sought a close alliance with the United States because they had always had the friendship and support of the people of this country. Speaking of the resources of the islands, Mr. Morgan said they were manifold and that the time would come when they would produce enough coffee to supply the demands of the people of the United States, while, he said, the sugar production had already reached its limit. He concluded that the resources of the country were such as to insure a prosperous future.

POSTAL SERVICE DEFICITS.

They Bring About a Lively Debate in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate by the introduction of a resolution by Mr. Hoar (Mass.) providing for an inquiry by the committee on postoffices and postroads concerning the recent order of the postmaster general reducing the force of letter carriers in several cities of the country. Mr. Hoar declared that the order had had the effect of a dynamite bomb in creating consternation among business men throughout the country, while apparently all that was needed by the postoffice department was an appropriation of $150,000 fully to maintain the efficiency of the carrier service.

The debate took a wide range, Mr. Wolcott, chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads, insisting that many New England people represented by the senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Hoar) were responsible for the deficiency in the funds of the postoffice department, because they insisted that the government should carry second-class mail at an enormous loss and Mr. Allen (Neb.) charging that the government was annually defrauded out of millions of dollars through the underweighing of mail matter. The resolution in a modified form is still pending.

BUTTERWORTH'S FUNERAL.

The President Attended and Prominent Men Were Pallbearers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Major Benjamin Butterworth, commissioner of patents, have been held at the Church of the Covenant, Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, the pastor, conducting the simple exercises of the Presbyterian church. The church was crowded, those present including President McKinley and all the members of his cabinet except Secretary Alger, who is ill, besides a number of senators and representatives, members of the bar and resident Washingtonians. After the services the remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery and deposited in a vault.

The honorary pallbearers were: Secretary C. N. Bliss, Speaker Thomas B. Reed, Senator Mark A. Hanna, Judge Jere M. Wilson, Judge William R. Day, assistant secretary of state; Judge Thos. Ryan, assistant secretary of the interior; Representative Joseph G. Cannon, Judge Louis E. McComas, Senator J. C. Burrows, Representative Amos C. Cummings, Mr. Greeley, assistant commissioner of patents, and Messrs. Julian C. Dowell and Henry W. Coffin.

The body bearers were examiners in the patent office.

LABOR LEADER COMING

President Mahan, of the Street Railway Employees,

WILL SPEAK HERE NEXT WEEK

Trades Council Will Arrange For a Big Meeting—New Delegates Seated—Constitution Changed—Treasurer's Accounts Countersigned.

The meeting of Trades council held last evening was largely attended, and a very interesting session was the result.

After the minutes were approved,
Joseph Pollock, William Price and Peter Ruppel, Saggarmakers, 16; Daniel Swartz and Byron Foutts, Packers
19; and W. E. George, Porcelain Workers 6978, were seated as delegates from their respective unions.

The announcement was made that W.
D. Mahan, of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees of America, would be in the city next Thursday, and Messrs.
McCord, Allison, Appell, McKinnon and Eardley were appointed a committee to make arrangements for a public meeting. Mr. Mahan will be remembered as the gentleman who made an address
at the Brotherhood picnic last year.

The amendment to the constitution was adopted. It authorizes the paying of a salary to the secretary and abolishes the office of corresponding secretary.

The trouble among the porcelain workers was discussed at length, and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiment of the council in the matter.

The trustees reported that they had examined the books of the treasurer and found them in splendid condition.
Their semi-annual report was withheld until the next meeting.

SOWING THE WIND.

A Strong Cast Will Present It at the Grand Saturday Night.

"Sowing the Wind," the best play
we have had from the pen of that most interesting of English playwrights, Mr.
Sydney Grundy, is a drama that has perhaps been a source of more discussion than any dramatic production seen in late years. It is in four acts and has for its main theme the social inequality of the sexes, namely the unlimited field for man's moral diversion, and the small world in which our women must live to keep in the good graces of society.

The play will be presented at the Grand next Saturday evening. It will be remembered by many theater goers
who were delighted with the presentation last season.

H. W. Taylor, representing Elroy's Stock company, is in the city today preparing for the appearance of the company here next week. They will open with "Wife For Wife" on Monday night.

ANOTHER SLIDE

This Time the Hillside Near Brady's is Slipping.

The hillside near Brady's cut began slipping last night, and this morning passengers on the early street cars were transferred while the tracks were being cleared of the dirt.

The slip at the Driven-From-Home hill has been removed, and no more trouble is expected from that quarter. The track in many places has sunk, and it is thought the company will experience a vast amount of trouble before the end of the wet weather, although every effort is being made to prevent delay and annoyance to passengers.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr.
C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

Stop This Dangerous Practice.

Yesterday afternoon in West Sixth street no less than eight small boys riding horses lined up for a race, and went down the street at breakneck speed. If the practice is not stopped, somebody will be seriously hurt, as the youngsters pay no attention to where they are going.

No Contagion.

The quarantine was yesterday afternoon lifted from the residence of Andrew Hutchinson in Waterloo road, the patient, who had been suffering from diphtheria, having recovered.

With that action the health authorities declared the city to be free from contagion.

FRUITS FOR THE TABLE.

Mrs. Rorer Tells the Best Kinds—How They Should Be Served.

Fruits are more appetizing and, perhaps, more easily digested if taken in the early part of the day—whether or not before the breakfast must be determined by the eater.

Grapes, oranges and shaddock may be served before the cereal. Baked apples, peaches, baked bananas, figs, dates, prunes or stewed fruits should be served at the close of the breakfast.

Raisins, sultanas, dried figs and prunes should be soaked thoroughly, so that they may take up the same amount of water with which they have parted in the process of drying, and should then be heated just enough to soften the skins.

The subacid fruits, such as apples,
figs, dates, peaches, persimmons, pears, prunes and apricots, are, perhaps, the best of the winter fruits and may be used to good advantage with animal foods.

Acid fruits must at all times be used most sparingly, especially by persons inclined to rheumatic troubles. The continued use of an orange or shaddock
before breakfast will diminish the power of stomach digestion, for which reason they should be served with cereals or such foods as require only intestinal digestion.

The papaw and pineapple belong to a class alone. They contain a vegetable pepsin which assists in the digestion of the nitrogenous principles. These fruits, then, may be served with meats and will aid in their digestion. When served with bread and butter, they do not form
so good a diet. They are more digestible raw than cooked, as the heat destroys the activity of the ferments.

Apples as a rule are more easily digested cooked than raw, although raw apples are more palatable.

The fashion of adding sugar to fruits should be avoided, as they have already been endowed with a sufficient amount of sugar, and as all the starch and cereals are converted into sugar any further amount would be stored in the system, to its detriment. If our bilious friends would throw aside their liver pills and with them sugar, they might be free from much discomfort.—Mrs. S. T.
Rorer in Ladies' Home Journal.

EDWIN BOOTH.

The Great Tragedian Was Possessed of a Keen Sense of Humor.

Booth had a keen sense of humor, and among his intimates he was anything but the sad and gloomy man whom the outside world associated always with the character of the melancholy Dane of the stage. His published letters show how bright and cheerful he was usually in his familiar correspondence, and the following rhyming epistle is worth printing here as an example of his not infrequent efforts in that peculiar line.
It came with an engraved portrait,
neatly framed:

XMAS EVE, 79.

DEAR H.:
Think not that I forget,
Or that because the walkin's wet
Is why I haven't called as yet
Fumer is pipe, on cigarette.
In your sanctum sanctorum.
'Tis but because I have to fry
Some other fish before they're dry.
This only is the reason why
My friends I do not bore 'em.
So, since I can't aller chez vous,
This deadhead I present in lieu
Of the one which here I shoulder.
Hoping this, too, may likewise call
Before the New Year learns to crawl
Or the old one grows much older.
But I know not, dear Hutton,
If you'll care a button
For this mug o' my own that I send,
Though 'tis told me as truth
(May be flattery, forsooth)
By some who are judges
That this very mug is
By far the best phiz

Of your friend

P. S.—You may spurn it, or dern it,
Or dash it, or dang it, or burn it,
Or mash it by puttin' yer fut on.
Do anything—rather than hang it.
If you don't like it, dear Hutton.

—Laurence Hutton in Harper's Magazine.

The French Peasant.

The French peasant has an independent means of existence. He owns the soil he tills. If he employs laborers, they at least will own a house and garden and hope to own a plot. The English villager is either a small tradesman or a laborer. A garden which he cultivates but does not own is, as a rule, the extent of his possessions. There are two classes in an English village, and these may be subdivided into various religious sects. There is only one class in our French commune—a fact which has a material bearing upon the social economy of the community. Every inhabitant of the commune is a proprietor of something, and all are bent on saving;
yet, with all their individualism, they combine for common and mutual interest. This is illustrated by the organization of the syndicate for buying at wholesale prices. They unite for the cultivation of the soil, lending each other horses and making up teams.
Every commune has a field, which is common property and where, on payment of a trifling fee, animals graze.
After the harvest all the fields become common property, and the gros betail
and the other betail are allowed to roam
at large.—Contemporary Review.

sumed the shape of a pair of pistols
when he turned upon his tormentors,
his hair bristling with rage and fire flashing from his eyes, and said, pointing the muzzles ominously at their heads: "Now, you infernal villains, you shall dance for me. Dance, — you, dance!" And dance they did to a tune they could well understand and accompanied by advice interlarded with original piquancy of expletive, which was at once their admiration and despair.

The general's speech was so plentifully besprinkled with expletives that it is doubtful if he ever wholly eliminated them. He reminds one of the wartime teamster who joined the backwoods church. Shortly after his own pastor came upon him with his team stuck in the mud and addressing his refractory mules in the only form of speech which is supposed to prevail with these obstinate brutes.

"Why, Mr. Jones," exclaimed the parson, holding up his hands in horror,
"you can't use such language after you have joined the church."

"I can't, hey. Well, parson, then I shall have to unjoin."

"OLD HICKORY."

Nearly 90 years have passed since that famous barbecue at Clover Bottom on a pleasant summer's day of 1809, and it would have slipped entirely from local annals were it not for an incident in which, of course, General Jackson figured. All the backwoods dignitaries were there from all the region roundabout, and the immense table, spread in the open air and loaded with every sort of tempting viand, was of such length that people seated at either end could hardly see each other. The general occupied the seat of honor at the upper end, and the crowd surged around, so dense and so noisy that one had to shout to make himself heard. Suddenly the general, who was engaged in conversation, heard some one passing casually remark, "Well, they'll finish Patten Anderson this time, I do expect."

Now, Anderson was Jackson's particular friend, and hearing this sinister prediction and being unable to get at the other end of the table, where the fight was going on, he leaped up and strode along the top of it, regardless of the smoking meats and steaming puddings. "Hold on, Patten; I'm coming!"
he roared at the top of his voice, and at the same time putting his hand behind him and snapping the lid of his tobacco
box. Strange to say, he had left his pistol at home, but the crowd took the clicking of the tobacco box cover for that of a pistol and cried out, "Don't shoot!" at the same time separating and leaving the man without inflicting further harm.

A year later the poor fellow was murdered and his slayer left off with a comparatively light sentence despite the utmost effort of General Jackson to have him convicted and hung. On the side of prosecution at this trial was one Thomas H. Benton, then a young lawyer, with whom Jackson formed an intimate friendship, soon by his own fault making of him an inveterate enemy, but eventually in his later years his defender and eulogist. It was while this trial was progressing that, as Jackson was haranguing a crowd outside the courthouse, some fellow passing said,

"Pshaw!" The general turned upon him with: "Who dares say 'Pshaw!' at me? By —, I'll knock any man's head off who says 'Pshaw!' at me!" Nobody said "Pshaw!" again that day.

During the year 1811 and merely to keep his hand in, as it were, Jackson had a bitter quarrel with Silas Dinsmore, Choctaw Indian agent, and finally, though the latter was more nearly right than his accuser, succeeded in driving him from the agency and eventually in bringing him to poverty.

At the breaking out of the 1812 war
General Jackson, who had been appointed major general of militia on the death of General Conway, in 1804, quickly responded to the president's call to arms
by offering him the immediate services of himself and 2,500 volunteers. Though accepted by President Madison with "peculiar satisfaction," the services of these volunteers were not called for until late that year, rendezvousing at Nashville in December. The weather was very cold for that section, and as the men were poorly equipped there were much suffering and grumbling. As Jackson was returning to his quarters,
after having been out all night, one morning at dawn he overheard a petty officer complaining that he and others of his grade should be compelled to suffer without protection, while the officers of higher rank should be comfortably housed at taverns. "You d—d infernal scoundrel," roared the general,
"sowing disaffection among my troops!
Why, the quartermaster and myself have been up all night, making the men comfortable. Let me hear any more of such talk and I'll ram this redhot andiron down your throat."

He issued the first of a series of fiery,
not to say bombastic, proclamations beginning, "Perish our friends, perish
our wives, perish our children, the dearest pledges of heaven—nay, perish all earthly considerations—but let the honor and fame of a volunteer soldier be un-tarnished and immaculate!"

In view of the fact that the order for their voyage to New Orleans was countermanded after they had got as far as Natchez and that they did not then
"sniff the red blood of battle" (though through no fault of theirs), this proclamation may seem rather ridiculous. It was on this expedition, which, though bloodless, was fatiguing and called for patient endurance, that General Jackson received his sobriquet of Old Hickory, from his toughness and elasticity.
Fruitless of glory as it was, this expedition plunged the commander deep in debt, for the general government having at first protested his drafts for transportation, etc., rather than have the soldiers suffer he paid them himself.

This was a noble act, worthy of all praise, but the sequel to it was another quarrel, for which he should not be other than reprobated. His generous assumption of the soldiers' dues would have reduced him to penury but for the action of his friend Benton, who persistently pleaded with the secretary of war at Washington until he issued the necessary order for reimbursement.
Having secured this restitution, Colonel Benton set out on his return to Tennessee, elated and gratified that he had been able so well to serve his friend.
What was his astonishment, his rage,
his indignation, to learn by the first courier he met from home that the very man he had so vastly benefited had served as second to an opponent of his brother in a duel. The brother was wounded, though not severely, and Benton lost no time in denouncing as an ingrate and worse this perfidious friend.

Notwithstanding his culpability Jackson took offense at this and swore, "By the Eternal, I'll horsewhip Tom Benton
at sight!" But he found a different foe from the insignificant Swann, for when he undertook to carry out this threat he himself was wounded in the shoulder by Benton's brother Jesse and nearly bled to death. Accounts of this affray are conflicting, but none of them reflects credit on either party. This time, however, General Jackson had to swallow a dose of his own medicine, for the rights in the case, the honors and the victory
were with his opponents.

With shattered shoulder and wounded arm the general was carried to his tavern, bleeding copiously, but full of fight and grit. The doctors assembled advised the amputation of the arm, their usual advice in such a case, but no, said the grim warrior, "I'll keep my arm." And he did, but the bullet remained there many years, and, together with the Dickinson wound, reminded him many a time and oft that the way of the transgressor is hard.

THE CREEK CAMPAIGN.

Meanwhile great events were taking place in the western territory, which,
had the news of them been sooner received, might have prevented these rash men from indulging their senseless animosities. There was urgent need for the white settlers to unite and arm, for the Creek Indians had risen, instigated by Tecumseh and stimulated by British gold, and had massacred already 400 men, women and children. The news of the horrible massacre at Fort Mims, when more than 400 whites were slaughtered, on the 30th of August, was long in reaching Nashville, but on the 19th of September, two weeks after the Benton affray, the citizens held a mass meeting to determine what should be done.

ing youth and maturity he may live to a green old age, and still be able to say with absolute truth, "I am a child myself."
Youth is not a matter of years. Happiness is not a question of experiences. Youth is happiness and health is youth. The healthy person, young or old, will be a happy person. It is a simple matter to get the body into a healthy condition and then to keep it there. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest of health makers and health savers. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the appetite keen, the digestion and assimilation perfect, the liver active, the blood pure, the muscles strong, the brain clear, the nerves steady and every vital organ in the body healthy and vigorous. It makes firm healthy flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. It does not make flabby flesh like cod liver oil. It purifies the blood and drives out the poisons of malaria and rheumatism. It is the best remedy for blood and skin diseases. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. Grateful patients, who had been given up to die, have permitted their experiences, names, addresses and photographs to be reproduced in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. The sufferer who wishes to investigate may write to any of these. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is sold by all medicine dealers, and only unscrupulous dealers will try to induce a customer to take some worthless substitute for the sake of a few pennies added profit.

WHO SAYS SO?

Everybody Who has Used Them and Some of Them are East Liverpool People.

Who told you so?
Neighbor So-and-so.
Oh, well! That's all right.
Testimony differs, doesn't it?
The more some people say
The less faith we have.
But the right man's word
Is taken at once.
That's the difference.
People want East Liverpool reference.
Particularly in matters of health.
We tell you Doan's Kidney Pills cure.
But we are the makers of them.
"Who says so" counts here, doesn't it?
East Liverpool people say so,
And we give you their addresses.
Perhaps you may know them.
Active lives bring on kidney troubles.
An example of this is:
Mr. G. H. Garner, of 168 Jackson st., the well-known manufacturer of ice cream, says: "I think my trouble started from a cold. It set in with a soreness and stiffness over my whole body; my appetite was poor, and I was troubled good deal with a bloating at the stomach. There was also a urinary difficulty, and I felt in fact generally used up
and as though I was breaking down.
I tried two or three different remedies,
but they did not do me the least good.
I seem if anything to be getting worse.
Having heard Doan's Kidney Pills so highly spoken of I made up my mind I would try them and procured a box of the W. and W. Pharmacy. I had not taken over half the box before I was entirely free from all my trouble, my appetite good and my old time vigor restored. I have recommended them to many of my friends, among them Mr. P.
J. Green, V. S., and they all speak of them in the highest terms. I can honestly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as very particular, knowing them to be No. 1 and well worth a trial by any one."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all

A committee was appointed to confer with the governor, and on the 25th the legislature passed an act authorizing the enlistment of 2,500 volunteers.
When it came to appoint a commander of this volunteer force, there was but one man to whom the thoughts of the people turned in this emergency, and he was lying prostrate in a darkened room, dangerously ill from wounds received through his own folly. The fracture of the shoulder was only just beginning to knit. He could not rise from his bed without suffering excruciating pains, yet he could dictate stirring appeals to the patriotism of his fellow citizens and from his chamber direct the mobilization of troops.

Within a fortnight he was in the sol-dle by a supreme effort of his indomitable will, but one arm was in a sling and he could not mount his horse without assistance. In this condition he met the troops at the appointed rendezvous, Fayetteville, more than 80 miles from his home, and had the pleasure of welcoming, among many others, the redoubtable Davy Crockett, who enlisted the camp with his wit and jollity.

This the most romantic episode of Jackson's adventurous life was fraught with severe labors. He was the soul and animating force of the rude soldiery and but for him most of them would have returned to their homes in disgust.

The Creek hostiles were scattered over a wide area, mostly in Alabama, but they had certain stockaded forts at

BUILDING BOOM SURE

PLANS FOR MANY DWELLINGS

Are Now Being Prepared, and There Are Others In Prospect—Business Blocks and Potteries on the List—The Situation Is Most Encouraging.

Every indication points to a busy season for the contractors and builders of the city. Never before in the history of East Liverpool were the prospects so bright as they are at present.

A leading architect said this morning that he had never known a time when there were more buildings projected. He has now on hand 12 dwellings, and knows that plans are being prepared for eight others. He is also drawing plans for a business block and two potteries. All will be built in the city within the next six months.

Contractors are preparing for a rush, and think the season will be particularly active. Contracts have already been let for a number of buildings, and others are in prospect.

In connection with this, it might be said that not in 20 years has any January seen as much brick work as has already been done this month. The weather has permitted it, and masons have had the work.

HE GAVE IT UP.

Bishop Messenger Was Not Successful Here.

Bishop George H. Messenger, of the Free Will Methodist church, will leave the city for Pittsburg.

This has been officially announced by the gentleman. His rooms in Second street are poorly furnished, and all attempts to establish a Free Will church in this city have met with failure. Several weeks ago another worker arrived in the city, and after looking over the ground found so few to follow their doctrine that further work would be of no use. The bishop's efforts will be shipped the early part of the week.

Blossoming Like the Rose.

E. C. McVoy, the well known pottery salesman, reached here last night from California, where he has been in the interests of the Sebring company.

"The country is blossoming like the rose, commercially," said Mr. McVoy, "and the crockery dealers are getting their share of the business. Trade is better in all lines, and the Pacific coast has the brightest prospects it has had for years."

Changing Addresses.

S. E. Andrews, who has charge of the soliciting for the city directory, is making excellent progress, and he expects to have the book ready for delivery early in April.

Mr. Andrews desires that all persons changing their addresses between now and Feb. 15, will notify him at 186 Fourth street.

Gone to Florida.

F. D. Kitchell was a passenger on the Queen City last night when it left the city. He will go by water to New Orleans, and after remaining there a short time will continue his journey to Tampa, Florida. He will not return until spring when he will take the boat to New York, and come west by rail.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr. C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

The Rain.

The rain last night was general throughout this section, and was particularly heavy in the country across the river. Middle run was a foaming torrent, and some fences were washed away.

In the city no damage was done, but the paved streets were well cleaned.

Another Fire Drill.

Fire drill was conducted yesterday afternoon at the Third street school building, and in less than five minutes the 200 pupils were out of the building and lined up in the street.

The Sixth street pupils will be the next to go through the exercises.

Board Will Pay Bills.

The board of education will hold its last meeting for the month of January in the Central building tomorrow evening. The most important matter that will be brought up is the paying of a few bills.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

Wrinkled and old are those hands of hers,
Hard and full of the seams
Of labor and the years,
Knotted the knuckles
And creased and crinkled
The skin on the backs of them,
Dark veined and large,
With splashes of brown
Between the drawn tendons,
As if seared by tears,
Thick the nails and blunted,
Rough and with little ridges
Running the length of them,
Callous the palms
And lacking all pinkness and prettiness.
Old are those hands of hers,
Wrinkled and hard.
But, oh, what a story of Infinite tenderness
And love
Could they tell,
Those hands of a woman
Whose threescore years and ten
Have been passed in doing the good
That women do!

THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion, if a story told of him may be credited. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived, the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low, but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say: "I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness. Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.—Youth's Companion.

English Jacobite Societies.

To judge from the list of Jacobite clubs and associations given in the "Legitimist Calendar For 1895," which includes the order of the White Roses, the Devon White Rose club, the Legitimist Jacobite League of Great Britain and Ireland (ponderous title!), the Eastern Counties' (shade of Cromwell!) White Cockade club, the Forty-five club of Grimsby, the Glasgow Jacobite club, the Oxford University Legitimist club, the St. Ives (Hunts) Jacobite club, the Jacobite Restoration league, the Surrey White Rose league, the Mary Stuart club of Lanark, the Legitimist Registration union, the National Royalist and Jacobite association, the order of St. Germain and the Hemingford Grey Royal Oak club, not to mention our old familiar Thames Valley Jacobites and two or three foreign legitimist bodies, it ought not to be difficult for the supporters of the lost house of Stuart to put several hundred adherents in the field (or even Ludgate circus) if they so decide.—London Mail.

Bismarck of Jewish Descent.

Few people are aware that Prince Bismarck is of Hebrew descent. He derives his Jewish blood from his mother, whose father—Anastasiu Menken, one of the favorite bureaucrats of Frederick the Great—was of Hebrew parentage. Although of late it has evidently appeared politic to the prince to countenance the anti-Semitic movement both in Germany and Austria, yet while in office he invariably showed himself a good friend to the Jewish nation and chose the Hebrew banker at Berlin, Baron von Bleichroeder, as his most trusted confidant. Indeed, in those days he was so well disposed toward the Jews that he even discussed the advisability of marrying his sons to Jewesses on the ground that it would bring money into the family again and likewise "improve both morally and physically the Bismarck breed."—International Review.

It is quiet in Havana, but General Blanco is not giving his word that it will last long.

If the independent bakers do not break the biscuit trust even bread and water may become a luxury.

STATE AUDITOR GUILBERT estimates that it will cost over $5,000,000 to pay the expenses of Ohio for the next fiscal year. It's a large amount, but this state never did do anything by halves.

CONSUL GENERAL LEE probably did avert war with Spain, but he should have some one other than the Cuban correspondents to tell it to the world if he would have it generally believed.

If Mayor McKissor is all the different things the Cleveland Leader would have its readers believe, his chance for holding office again in that county are almost equal to his prospects of ever playing a golden harp and treading the golden streets.

THE protests against the enactment of the immigration law will doubtless have little influence upon the members of congress, who have been made to understand that the great majority of people want something on that line that will prevent the practices whose continuation have become a curse to the nation.

THAT man Dole from Hawaii seems to be a very sensible gentleman. He does not complain because the government did not receive him with drums beating and colors flying, but appears content to transact his business in a business manner, asking none of that silly show of which there is entirely too much in this republic of ours.

THE effort to throw William Jennings Bryan out of the Democratic party, or at least that portion of that organization controlled by Mr. Croker and his friends, may or may not be successful, but it will have no influence on the general result. A gentleman named McKinley will be the winner the next time the parties come together.

ENGLISH manufacturers are complaining bitterly because their trade with America is not as profitable as in former years. Exports are falling off at a rapid rate, and the demand for their goods is steadily decreasing. Score another victory for the Dingley bill. When the English producer who depends on America for a market is prosperous this country is not making money.

A STEP BACKWARD.

The legislature will take a step backward if it repeals the law that allows the relatives of the victim of a mob to recover damages from the county in which the lynching occurred. The measure was passed in the hope that it would work toward a better enforcement of the law, would prevent taxpayers from having any part in those disgraceful scenes enacted too often in this state where we boast of our civilization. If it has not been successful it has certainly done no harm, and there will doubtless be many opportunities in the future for the knowledge of its existence to restrain influential men from leading or becoming a part of an infuriated mob bent on taking human life. There cannot be too many safeguards of this character. If the law in question does not answer the purpose, pass another more stringent, more effective, but do not repeal any. Some day we may feel their need.

What is probably the largest insurance policy ever written in the city, was placed by a local agent. It provides for an insurance of $30,000.

WORKING AT COLUMBUS

The Senatorial Battle Is Still the Subject For Conversation at the Capitol—Speaker Mason and His Methods Excite Comment—Many Bills.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—The legislature is devoting this week to clearing away the smoke and debris of the recent political battle, counting the losses and clearing decks for what is to come. The committees of both house and senate have been named, about two hundred bills have been introduced and the assembly is getting settled down to business. On account of the peculiar condition of affairs there has been considerable speculation regarding the make-up of the committees, but when the names were announced it was found that they were as good as could be expected. The past will not down, however, and the principal topic of gossip among the members is still the senatorial election and the scandals that have resulted. An investigation of charges of bribery was begun this week by committees from the house and senate, and it is expected that there will be many sensations. The charges now being inquired into are those made against Senator Hanna, by Representative Otis, of Hamilton county. The friends of the senator say that when the proper time comes charges just as grave will be made against the members of the anti-Hanna combination. Both sides are represented by long lists of able attorneys, and indications are that the investigation will be dragged through almost the full length of the session. Whether anything is proven or not, it is the intention of the Democrats to make as much noise over it as possible, with the hope that it may have a demoralizing effect on the Republicans at the next election.

Both house and senate investigating committees are made up of men unfriendly to Senator Hanna, and they propose to get all the political thunder possible out of the affair. The Democratic leaders and Republicans who were opposed to Hanna still maintain headquarters in the city, and they are engineering the investigation from behind the scenes. It is a safe prediction to make, however, that they will not be able to take from Senator Hanna his well earned commission.

Another disturbing element in the house is an effort being made to reorganize that body. Mr. Boxwell and some of his friends are behind this movement, but it is not likely that they will be successful. The coalition of Democrats and Republicans that elected Mr. Mason speaker is still intact, and the leaders claim that they have made accessions to their ranks. There are also many members on the regular Republican side who are opposed to any radical action in this direction. Aside from the question of practicability they believe that any such attempt would be unwise.

One of the Republicans who feels thus put the situation very pointedly when interviewed on the matter. "Even if we should succeed in getting a majority and ousting Mr. Mason from the speaker's chair, and reorganizing the house from top to bottom, what good would be accomplished? The legislature would be thrown into a state of chaos and all legislation would be stopped. The senate is Democratic, and the senators have threatened that if the house is reorganized not a bill from a Republican shall be passed by them. They are in a position to carry out their threat, and we might stay here all winter and do absolutely nothing. In the house itself the reorganization might be overturned any day when the fusion should show up with a majority, and then the speaker and clerks would not know whether they would be in office the next day or not. Such a state of affairs would not accord with the dignity of the assembly or redound to its credit. Therefore, I

The political feeling is intense, however, and it is sure to crop out during the whole session. An example of this occurred on Tuesday, when the list of senate committees was reported. Senator Alexander presented a written protest, charging the Democrats with unfairness in the arrangement and making a bitter personal attack on Senator Burke. After a long debate the protest was entered on the journal, but much time was used up by the useless discussion.

The committees of the house, appointed by Speaker Mason, all have Republican chairmen and a Republican majority, but that majority is only one of each committee. This large representation of Democrats has caused considerable comment. The Republican bolters, to whom Mr. Mason owes his elevation to the speakership, fared very well in his appointments. Mr. Jones, of Stark, is chairman of the finance committee, considered the most important post on the floor of the house; Mr. Scott, of Fulton, is chairman of the committee on taxation, a position almost equally responsible; Mr. Manuel, of Montgomery, is at the head of the committee of Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' home; Mr. Joyce, of Guernsey, is chairman of the insurance committee; Mr. Otis, of Hamilton, is chairman of the committee on municipal affairs; and Mr. Bramley will preside over the committee on railroads and telegraphs. These are the committees that do the bulk of work of the legislature, and Mr. Mason kept them in the hands of his friends. The only committee that ranks with them is that on the judiciary, of which Mr. Chase Stewart, of Clark county, is chairman. Mr. Stewart is the real leader on the regular Republican side of the house.

These committees are taking hold of the work and by next week the calendar will begin to show a list of bills for third reading and passage.

As has been previously predicted the bills introduced thus far have been mainly reform measures, or bills to repeal existing statutes.

The Newspaper Bogy.

E. L. Godkin in The Atlantic claims that the advertiser rather than the subscriber is now the newspaper bogy. He is the person before whom the publisher cowers and tries to please, and the advertiser is very indifferent about the opinions of a newspaper. What interests him is the amount or quality of its circulation. What he wants to know is how many people see it, not how many people agree with it. The consequence is that the newspapers of largest circulation, published in the great centers of population where most votes are cast, are less and less organs of opinion, especially in America. In fact, in some cases the advertisers use their influence, which is great and which the increasing competition between newspapers makes all the greater, to prevent the expression in newspapers of what is probably the prevailing local view of men or events. There are not many newspapers which can afford to defy a large advertiser.

How It Felt.

A worthy old gentleman who had never wandered far from his native township before went to Boston one day in response to an invitation to visit a relative.

The Bostonian, in showing his friend about town, took him to the top of a tall office building. They took a look at the marvelous landscape spread out before them and prepared to descend. They entered the elevator. It began its swift journey downward.

"Don't be frightened, Uncle Silas," said the younger man, as his visitor grasped his arm, shut his eyes and held on for life. "There is no danger."

"I wasn't afraid, George," gasped Uncle Silas, after they had stepped out of the elevator, "but I—I left my stom-ach up there."—Youth's Companion.

Happy Culmination of Courtship By Correspondence.

THEY MET LAST SATURDAY

For the first time, although their letters had been so frequent as to make them old acquaintances and bring about the wedding.

The answering of an advertisement in a matrimonial paper will this evening result in wedding in this city.

Several months John De Steeris, a prosperous business man of Memphis, Tenn., advertised for a wife in the Climax, a monthly paper devoted to correspondence. The advertisement was seen by a number of people in this city, who induced Mrs. Angeline Dean, a widow lady who lives with her son in Jackson street, to answer the advertisement. She did, and in a short time received an answer. The couple continued to correspond regularly, and, as usual in such cases, photographs were exchanged.

Last week a letter was received from the gentleman saying he was coming to the city and he arrived Saturday evening.

He called on the lady of his choice, and their mutual admiration at once ripened into love and they decided to get married. A marriage license was issued and the happy couple will be married this evening at the residence of Rev. J. C. Taggart, East Market street.

The couple will leave on the 7:30 train for Cincinnati where they will spend a week. They will then go to Memphis where they will make their future home.

TWO PROPOSITIONS

Were Considered by the East End Land Company.

The East End land syndicate met this morning, but, owing to the fact that there was not a majority of the stockholders represented, nothing was done.

Two propositions were received, one from Edwin M. Knowles and Thomas B. Anderson offering to erect a six-kiln pottery for an $8,000 bonus, and one from Robert Hall and J. J. Parinton asking a bonus of $10,000 for the same size plant.

The propositions were thoroughly discussed, and the majority of those present were in favor of accepting the best offer, provided the parties would take land for the bonus.

COUNTY ASKED TO PAY

Eight Thousand Dollars For an Accident.

FELL OFF A LISBON BRIDGE

Frank Snyder, a Coal Miner, Suffered Injuries Which Will Not Allow Him to Pursue His Avocation—Commissioners Blamed.

LISBON, Jan. 20.—[Special]—The county commissioners were made defendants this morning in an action for $8,000 damages filed by Frank Snyder, of this place.

Two months ago Snyder was walking across what is known as Mill Site bridge, spanning a stream of water that crosses East Walnut street. Owing to the darkness, he could not see clearly, and fell over an eight-foot embankment at the west side of the bridge, alighting on his head and shoulders. The accident caused serious injury to his spinal cord and partial paralysis of upper and lower extremities. He claims the commissioners are liable in not having guard rails there, and in having failed to construct the bridge so as to be in line with the county road. Snyder was a coal miner before the accident, and thinks he will never again be able to support himself by manual labor.

William Humphrey, an aged resident of Hanover township, was adjudged insane today. He will be sent to Newburg.

A FAMOUS MULBERRY TREE.

Planted by Milton in Christ's College Garden, Cambridge.

In the gardens of Christ's college, Cambridge, stands a venerable mulberry tree, which, tradition says, was planted by Milton during the time when he was a student at the university. This would be between the years 1624 and 1632, for the following copy, from the Latin of his entry of admission, accurately fixes the former date, and his admission to the degree of M. A., to which he proceeded in the latter year, ended his intimate connection with the university: "John Milton, native of London, son of John Milton, was initiated in the elements of letters under Mr. Gill, master of St. Paul's school; was admitted a lesser pensioner Feb. 12, 1624, under Mr. Chappell and paid entrance fee, 10s." He was then 16 years and 2 months old.

The tree so intimately associated with his name is now much decayed, but in order to preserve it as much as possible from the ravages of time many of the branches have been covered with sheet lead and are further supported by stout wooden props, while the trunk has been buried in a mound of earth. The luxuriance of the foliage and the crop of fruit which it annually bears are proof of its vitality, but to insure against accidents and perpetuate the tree an offshoot has been planted close by. In the event of a bough breaking and falling it is divided with even justice among the fellows of the college, and many pieces are thus preserved as mementos of the poet. It was during his residence at Cambridge that he composed his ode, "On the Morning of Christ's Nativity." "Lycidas," too, is intimately connected with Milton's life at the university, since it was written in memory of Edward King, his college friend and contemporary, with whom he doubtless shared the same rooms.

In those days students did not, as now, occupy separate apartments, as witness the original statutes of the college, "In which chambers our wish is that the fellows sleep two and two, but the scholars four and four," in consequence of which a much closer intimacy was formed among them than is now possible. Dr. Johnson relates that Milton was flogged at Cambridge, but the fact is doubtful, though there is reason to suppose that he had differences with the authorities in the earlier part of his college career, since he was transferred from his original tutor. This tree is still pointed out to visitors and was until recent years especially marked by a bough of mistletoe growing upon it.—Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper.

No member of the canine family has been more persistently maligned than the bulldog. Writers who have no intimate knowledge of the dog and his attributes have described him as stupidly ferocious, and illustrators have pictured him as a sort of semiwild beast, till the general public has come to look upon him as dangerous.

"Give a dog a bad name," is an old saw, and perhaps a true one, but when it is applied to the bulldog it is manifestly unjust. Writers, too, have fallen into grave error in claiming that the bulldog is deficient not only in affection, but in intelligence.

Stonehenge, who is considered one of the greatest of canine scientists, claims that the bulldog's brain is relatively larger than that of the spaniel, which dog is generally considered to be the most intelligent of the canine race, while the bulldog's affection is never to be doubted.—Outing.

THE PIGEON SHOOTERS.

Hundreds Will Participate In the Grand American Handicap.

More than 200 pigeon shooters from all parts of the United States and Canada will participate in the grand American handicap to be held at Elkwood park, Long Branch, early in March. The entries will be more numerous and the average efficiency higher than at any great shoot ever held in America or Europe, the Grand Prix at Monte Carlo not excepted. Last year a grand American handicap called out more participants than ever assembled at Monte Carlo, and it is to the remarkable success of this affair that the Interstate Sporting association attributes the revival of interest in live and clay pigeon shooting in all parts of the country.

THE EXCITABLE FRENCH.

Scene In the Chamber of Deputies With the Members Enraged.

Upon arriving at the anteroom of the chamber of deputies, says Colonel T. W. Higginson in The Atlantic, I found the hall full of people waiting, each having to send his card to some member, naming on it the precise hour of arrival. The member usually appeared promptly, when an immense uher called in a stentorian voice for "La personne qui a fait demander M. Constant"—or whoever it might be. Then the constituent—for such it usually was—advanced toward the smiling member, who never looked bored, the mask of hospitality being probably the same in this respect throughout the legislative halls of the world. At last M. Talandier appeared and got me a place among the corps diplomatique. The chamber itself was more like our representatives' hall at Washington than like the house of commons. The members had little locked desks, and some were writing letters, like our representatives, though I saw no newspapers.

The ordinary amount of noise was like that in our congress, though there was happily no clapping of hands for pages, but when the members became especially excited, which indeed happened very often, it became like a cage of lions. For instance, I entered just as somebody had questioned the minister of war, General Borel, about an alleged interference with elections, and his defiant reply had enraged the Lefts, or radicals, who constituted the majority of the assembly. They shouted and gesticulated, throwing up their arms and then slapping them on their knees very angrily, until the president rang his great bell, and they quieted down lest he might put on his hat and adjourn the meeting. In each case the member speaking took his stand in the desk or tribune below the president, and the speeches were sometimes read, sometimes given without notes.

The war minister, a stout, red faced man—always, the radicals say, half intoxicated—stood with folded arms and looked ready for a coup d'etat, yet I heard it said about me that he would be compelled either to retreat or resign. One saw at a glance how much profounder political differences must be in France than with us.

Married on Thirty Minutes' Courtship.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said Captain Arm Cardwell once, "but I think I once witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running as a conductor between Russellville and Owensboro, as I did for many years, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9:45 a. m. A few miles farther on at another small station a big strapping looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her.

"I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green river tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth. In 25 minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want to get hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but 30 minutes, but we both like, an she's willin an so'm I. Whur's the highest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick yeast love matches."—Louisville Post.

Eugene Sue's Franks.

The father of Eugene Sue was a physician with exalted patients all over Europe, who sent him the choicest wines. The emperor of Austria, for instance, had contributed today, the king of Prussia rare hock, Queen Christina of Spain priceless alicante, Prince Metternich genuine cachet d'or, and so on. The whole was kept in a large iron cupboard in the study of the learned physician, known as the Elzevir library. Eugene was then a college freshman, and, having procured a skeleton key to the closet, with his friends, Adolphe, Adam, Veron and others, proceeded every night to investigate the contents of the bottles. Not wishing to have their explorations prematurely stopped, they took the precaution to fill up the partially exhausted flasks with water and then to reseal them. When, for a long time afterward, the doctor brought forth samples of his precious stock for the delectation of guests worthy of it, and the company tasted it with a due sense of awe, it was privately felt that the celebrity of these great brands was all moonshine, that ordinary table d'hote bordeaux was preferable to them. But nobody dared to say so, and it was only after the death of his dreaded parent that the novelist confessed the sacrilege.

He Got a Mate.

A sea captain called at a village inn and asked the landlady, a young widow: "Do you know where I can get a mate? I have lost my mate."

"I am very sorry for you, Mr. —," she said, smiling. "I want a mate, too, and cannot get one. As we are in the same position, I'll tell you what I'll do—if you'll be mine, I will be yours."

He closed with the bargain, and, the widow keeping her word, he is now supplied with two mates.—Pearson's Weekly.

WHAT SHE MOST RESENTED.

She Could Readily Forgive and Forget Most Anything but This.

She swept into the office of the manager with cyclonic perturbation. Anybody could see from the haughty superiority of her manner that if she was not yet a star she fully intended to be one. In her hand was a newspaper, which she laid on the desk before the manager.

"Now, really, Miss Frostleigh," he said somewhat impatiently, "I am not responsible for what appears in the newspapers about you. I can't do anything more than say I am sorry you should have any troubles. That's all anybody does for me when I get into debt."

"Have you read that cruel article about my husband applying for a divorce?"

"Yes—that is to say, I glanced over the headlines."

"You can at least tell me where I can find the editor."

"Now, take my advice and keep away. It won't do you the least bit of good."

"But don't you think I have a right to complain?"

"Of course. It was too bad. I have no doubt it was a base calumny to say you cut his allowance down to $12 a week."

"I could have borne that," she murmured.

"And I can understand it was very annoying to have it said that you put him out of a cab one night and made him walk three miles to the depot."

"That was not the cruelest part of it, though."

"And it was naturally embarrassing to have it asserted in cold type that in a fit of jealous pique you knocked him down and then jumped on him."

"Do you think the papers in all of the cities printed that?" she inquired.

"In all probability they did. I'm sorry for the worry it must cause you."

"That wasn't all!" she exclaimed.

"I know. What you refer to is the insinuation that he is your seventh husband."

"That isn't the worst either," she said, with a heartbreaking sob. "They spelled my name wrong!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Old Soldier Tells of His Going Away and of His Home Coming.

"My last recollection of the camp in which we were mustered in," said the old soldier, "was of my mother. We had been in camp for days, for weeks, in fact, filling up the regiment and drilling and getting equipped, and getting ready generally. Finally we were mustered in, and the next day after that we started.

"It was nightfall when we fell in for the last time in the company streets of our first camp and marched out and formed on the color line. There was a great crowd there, relatives and friends and sightseers come to see the regiment off. In front of my own company I could see my father and mother, come to see the last of their boy before he went to war. I was the apple of my mother's eye. I knew that, and I had expected to see her break down completely when the regiment marched away, but she stood as firm as a rock.

"When the regiment came home, we marched up through the same street that we had marched down years before—night again, it was, too—with a band of music, with fireworks flying everywhere, and with crowds on the sidewalk cheering, to the town hall, where there was a banquet, with a speech from the mayor, and so on. When this was nearly over, my father and my brother, who had come to meet me, went home to tell my mother I was coming.

"Home was half a mile or more away. A bunch of us, men of the regiment, started from the hall together. They fell off one after another, until finally I went on alone along the familiar street. It was bright moonlight. Far ahead, at the corner of the street down which I must turn for home, I saw her. She was waiting.

"When I had come to her, she lifted up her hands and pronounced my name, that was all, and then her arms were about my neck, and my old blue overcoat was wet with her falling tears. Her son had come home."—New York Sun.

Vice President McCrea Thinks Railroads Right.

We Cannot See How the Complaint Made to the Inter-State Commerce Commission Through Representative Acheson Will Stand—Messengers Are Sanguine.

The movement of the commercial messengers in taking their grievance to the Inter-State Commerce commission has excited much interest in Pittsburgh and the smaller towns where they do business. Railroad men are especially interested, and the opinions of officials are eagerly sought. James McCrea, vice president of the Pennsylvania company, is out in a statement in which he says:

"We do not fear that the Inter-State Commerce commission will interfere in the matter. The rights and privileges of express companies and commercial messengers have been so clearly outlined by the courts that there is no reason to believe we will be required to change our position."

This seems to represent the sentiment of the railroad men. The messengers are just as confident that the government will interfere in their behalf.

On the River.

The river continues to fall but the rain of last night will cause it to rise again, as it was general in the upper valleys. The river will probably start tomorrow. Today the marks at the Market street wharf today registered 14 feet and falling.

The Queen City passed down last evening with a good trip. The Urania is the down boat this evening.

The Bedford has been tied in at Parkersburg for several weeks, but passed up today with a good trip.

The steamer Hudson will be put in the trade early in the spring. The hull will be almost new when it is off the ways.

Passed up—Fallia and H. F. Frisbie. Down—Urania and Mariner.

To Be Married Today.

The Beaver Falls Tribune of yesterday has the following to say of young people who are well known in this city: "James Stoddard, of the East Palestine Pottery Company, and Miss Myrtle M. Patterson, of East Palestine, will be married by Rev. Cartwright, of New Brighton, at the home of Nick Walsh, on Fifth avenue, at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The young folks are both well known in society circles at East Palestine and have a large number of acquaintances in this place."

Flooded the Office.

There was a general shift in the freight office this morning. A portion of the roof was taken off yesterday by the carpenters who are making the new addition, and when it rained during the night the water came through the wooden ceiling in streams.

Some old records were water soaked, and Agent Thomas' office was well flooded. Most of the desks were removed to other parts of the office, and some of the clerks occupied the office in the rear of the ware room.

Pupils of the public schools can secure tickets at Reed's drug store for Dr. C. N. Thomas' famous lecture, "Cuba and the Cubans," for the sum of 15 cents.

Two Extra Trains.

Freight business on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh river division is booming. Since the opening of the Jefferson by the new company at Steubenville, the activity of the Atna-Standard, Mingo, and the iron and steel plants of Martin's Ferry and Bellaire, the river division is sending down about two extra freights per day. One of these goes as far as Mingo, the other through to Bellaire.

Laid to Rest.

The funeral of the late Michael King took place this morning from St. Aloysius church and was largely attended. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

The funeral of George W. Ward took place this afternoon from his late home in the East End, Reverend Salmon officiating. Interment was made at Spring Grove.

At the Depot.

The force at the freight depot were busy yesterday, but the number of cars of crockery sent out did not reach the expectations of the experts. The record will be maintained today.

BOUND AND GAGGED THE FAMILY.

Robbers Robbed the House, Ate Breakfast and Departed on a Handcar.

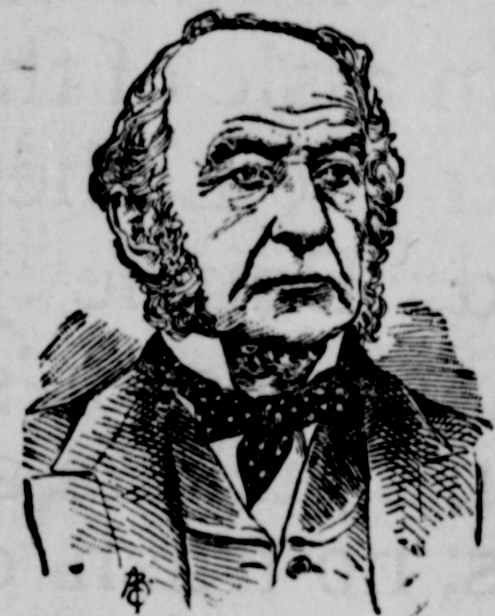

LIMA, O., Jan. 20.—Five masked men entered the residence of Mrs. Anna Gratz, two miles east of Beaver Dam, this county, and at the point of a revolver, bound and gagged every member of the household, consisting of Mrs. Gratz, a daughter, three sons, aged from 10 to 18 years, and two farm hands, John Huenstein and Adolph Follett. Leaving one of their number to guard their victims, the remaining four robbers looted the house, securing about $50 in money, two gold watches and some jewelry, after which they repaired to the kitchen, cooked themselves a breakfast and left.

About an hour later one of the family succeeded in getting free and gave the alarm. It was ascertained that the robbers had stolen a handcar on the Lake Erie and Western road. Bloodhounds were sent from this city, but the trail was too old.

Sensational Reports of Dangerous Illness Are Denied.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The publication of The Pall Mall Gazette report saying Mr. Gladstone was in dangerous health caused numbers of inquiries to be made at 4 Whitehall court, S. W., the residence of Henry Gladstone, the aged statesman's son. Mrs. Henry Gladstone and George Armistead, an intimate friend of the family, both said there was nothing in the latest information they had received to justify the alarmist reports.

Mr. Gladstone has been suffering from a return of his neuralgia. They said he was better and that his physicians were satisfied with his progress towards recovery.

SAXTON LOST THE SUIT.

Must Pay $30,000 For Alienating the Affection of George's Wife.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—George D. Saxton, a brother of Mrs. McKinley, wife of the president, will have to pay Sample C. George $30,000 for the alienation of the affections of the latter's wife. Such is the decision of the supreme court, just handed down.

Saxton is quite wealthy, and is the owner of the Saxton block in Canton. George alleges that Saxton became intimate with his wife and induced her to go west. She secured a divorce in Lincoln county, South Dakota, the charges being that Saxton paid all expenses. The case was bitterly fought.

PROMINENT MAN KILLED.

Man Helping Him Move Accidentally Shot Him at Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 20.—Robert G. Hazlett, a prominent citizen, was shot through the heart by Ray H. Lee and fell back into the arms of his wife, expiring almost instantly, while engaged in moving to another residence. He had employed Lee to assist in handling his household goods.

Lee was handling a target rifle when the weapon was discharged, the bullet striking Hazlett, who exclaimed "my God, I'm shot," and, falling back, would have struck the floor had not his wife caught him. After a brief struggle he expired.

The statement made by Lee that the shooting was accidental was corroborated by Mrs. Hazlett and also by her daughter.

Woman's "Emancipation" Fight.

Mrs. Brierly, the would be motorman, has been taken off the brake, and she no longer controls the power on an electric car. No complaint was made of her work, but the male employees made a fuss, saying that her position on the front platform kept a man out of a job, and so to keep peace in his force the superintendent was obliged to let her go.

HAPPENED IN THIS STATE.

Harry Hicks, a Niles shoemaker, made in assignment.

George C. Nelson, aged 50, was killed by a railroad engine at Akron.

Al Shriever of Alliance, while digging a well at Suffield, fell into the well and received fatal injuries.

Captain H. L. Kuhns, manager of the Hurford House, Canton, has been indicted by the grand jury for selling liquor on Sunday.

The 7-year-old son of Abram Blackstock was run down by a freight at Empire, had an arm cut off and was otherwise injured.

THE PROBERS HALTED.

Witnesses Refused to Testify at Columbus.

The Committee Asked the Senate Today to Act Against Those Refusing to Give Testimony—Reorganization Beaten In the House.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—The investigation into the charges of bribery at the recent election of a United States senator has reached a crisis. No matter what may be the final result of the investigation, there will likely be several witnesses arrested for contempt. The committee had seven witnesses subpoenaed, but they were not examined because none of them would testify.

The senate committee, Tuesday night, examined Samuel Pentland, Frank P. Ross, W. F. Truesdale and Shepherd M. Dunlap, who then asked to confer with their attorneys, and were excused until last night for that purpose. When they appeared last night they said their attorneys held that the senate had no jurisdiction in the investigation of the alleged bribery of a member of the house, and had advised them not to answer any further questions before the committee. They all followed the advice of their attorneys, as did Mr. Hollenbeck, who was not on the stand last night. When the committee found that the advice of attorneys was being followed uniformly by all witnesses called, the open session was closed and the committee went into executive session on plans for further procedure.

Each witness was told that he was held under service by the committee, and should report tonight at 7:30 or sooner if called for. Among the cases cited is that of Daniel Dalton, who was subpoenaed in 1886 to bring forged tally sheets before a legislative committee. Dalton refused and was brought before the house for contempt. Dalton was subpoenaed to produce public records in his custody, and the witnesses last night claim they are asked to produce private property. The committee made a partial report to the senate today. The committee asked the senate to punish the witnesses for contempt and to give the investigators full authority. Garfield voted against the report in committee.

In the house there was a test vote on reorganization and it resulted in a vote of 58 to 50 against the proposed change. Speaker Mason in giving some Hanna men the best chairmanships and other preferred places has quieted the reorganization agitation. The Hanna senatorial investigating committee is doing nothing.

The C., H. & D. Trouble.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—Grand Master Sargent, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, is in the city in secret conference with employees of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad. Superintendent Waldo of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton says there is no prospect of a strike among their employees. He says they are all loyal, and that, although they have presented grievances, a way will be found to give them satisfaction without compelling them to resort to a strike.

Suicided Before His Sweetheart.

RAVENNA, Jan. 20.—While walking with his sweetheart Cornelius D. Eattinger, a well-known young man of this city, the son of prominent parents, quarreled with the young woman. Suddenly he pulled a revolver and without a word of warning, sent a bullet through his brain, falling dead at his sweetheart's feet. The young woman is prostrated by the shock and her condition is serious. She cannot talk about the tragedy.

Annual Woodchopping Bee.

CANAL DOVER, Jan. 20.—The Zoarites held their annual Holzsegerel, or woodchopping and sawing bee. The Zoar society bakers make bread for all the members, and immediately after the holidays of each year woodchoppers are sent out to cut down and haul to the big bakery all the hickory trees they can find. This is the only kind of wood used in baking.

Found Dead in a Bathtub.

CANTON, Jan. 20.—The body of Luther Hugh, a traveling man for a Johnstown (N. Y.) medicine company, was found in a hotel here under circumstances indicating self-destruction. Hugh has been here for ten days, too ill to do business, and at times was very despondent. He has been heard to threaten his life. He was found drowned in a bathtub full of water.

The Ohio River Rising.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—Reports of heavy rain come from the entire Ohio valley watershed. The rains of two or three days ago saturated the ground and left all streams bank full. Should the rain stop now a stage of at least 52 feet in the Ohio would surely follow. The stage of water was 45 feet 2 inches and rising 5 inches per hour, at 1 a. m.

Desperate Fight on a Train.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—A desperate fight, which resulted in the death of one man, occurred on an Erie railway train near Willson. Special Officer McNabb was attacked by four tramps and pelted with iron ore. He shot two of them—Alfred Green and John Green. The former, who is now in the hospital, will die.

In the New York directory for 1813 is the entry, "Peter Cooper, machinist, 98 Elm street." Elm street was then one of the poorer localities.
